ALICE ARM SEEMS LIKELY TO REVIVE.

Alice Arm as a mining camp seems to be on the eve of a revival. Not only has the Dolly Varden property been bought but this has been followed by the bonding of a number of adjoining claims that will provide scope for very extensive operations. Outside of that altogether there are a number of very promising mines, some of which have been shipping ore and others preparing to do so before very long. Next spring should see great activity in the camp.

THOUSANDS FLOCK TO WATCH BALL GAMES.

Thousands of people flock to St. Louis and New York to watch the World Series baseball games. They take an intense interest in the proceedings and how themselves hoarse rooting for the side they favor. Incidentally the players and owners of the teams make big money for themselves.

Organized sport is coming to be a great financial undertaking. That was seen in the recent championship boxing match between Dempsey and Tunney. It is seen in the hockey manipulations which are going on at present and even locally it is noticed that one of the big aims is to secure a good gate. This commercialism is rather to be deplored and yet it must be accepted as one of the modern developments.

WILL ONLY PLAY IF NUMBER ARE WATCHING.

The commercial aspect of sport has so pervaded the present day games that many young men and young women refuse to play unless there are a lot of fans on the sidelines. That is apparently the objection to playing basketball at the Exhibition Hall. So far as an outsider can see there is no need of money. Basketball players, like players of other games, might well provide their own paraphernalia. But that does not suit. What they want is to draw money from the public for watching the game.

We have no objection to anyone charging any sum they wish to see any game, but all we wish to point out is that if the games at the Exhibition Hall are not as well attended as those played down town the games should be just as good and be equally as much enjoyed by the players who are the ones most nearly concerned. As long as they have a good game and can pay the rent of the hall they should be satisfied. That is the first aim of the sport and not the attraction of a big gate. The gate should be always secondary.

CONGRATULATE CITY ON SELLING BONDS

Prince Rupert is to be congratulated on the latest sale of city bonds. The price obtained was a good one and is an indication of the increasing stability of the city and the outside opinion of the future prospects. Steadily, year by year, Prince Rupert securities have improved in value and with careful financing they will continue to improve until they are among the high priced bonds on the financial market.

IMMIGRATION SHOULD BE GENERAL IN CANADA.

In the past there has been too much of a tendency to encourage immigration to particular parts of Canada while other parts equally attractive are allowed to languish. Just now the far eastern provinces are asserting their claims to consideration in this regard and British Columbia should also have her share. There are the lands adjacent to the Canadian National Railway open to settlement and the P.G.E. lands. These at any rate should receive consideration in any Dominion scheme for the bringing in of European settlers to take up lands.

DESTINED TO JOIN STATES

THAT IS WHAT LONDON JOURNAL SEES AS RESULT OF HAVING REPRESENTATIVE AT WASHINGTON

(Edmonton Journal)
 London "Truth" has never been very successful when it essayed the role of prophet regarding Canada. It forecast that this country would be plunged into irretrievable bankruptcy because of the construction of the C.P.R. Now it is of the opinion that we are destined to join the United States. The demand for separate diplomatic representation at Washington is regarded as an ominous portent, along with the increasing American investments in the Dominion. Despite the fact that certain Canadian publicists and politicians will angrily dismiss the suggestion, money, it thinks, will "in the modern world have its way in the long run."

NICE PEOPLE
 To be sure, the editor goes on to say, all nice people favor English connection. They come to London every year and have many friends here. Some of them even bear English titles. But in democracy it is not the nice but the nasty people who govern.

The distinction drawn in the above will be resented by all Canadians, regardless of their views about the future of the country. It shows how little "Truth" appreciates our deep rooted attachment to the motherland. It never would have survived, in the face of so many contrary influences, if it had been confined to those that the writer of the above has in mind when he speaks of "nice" people. Of the most ardent supporters of the British connection the great majority have never seen England and have no intimate relations with anybody there.

MONEY INFLUENCE
 As to the effect of the American money that is coming into Canada in such large volume, it can hardly stimulate any tendency that may exist to wards continental political union, when all the other factors that would naturally be expected to work in that direction have for so long proved powerless to create any strong sentiment for a change. There must be something very real in our desire to remain a British country when for all these years we have resisted the influences exerted by our geographical position, alongside a nation so much more powerful than our own. During the early stages of its growth the United States was mainly developed with British money, but it did not alter in any respect the course of American political progress.

IS NOT SURE
 "Truth" is not sure whether the absorption of Canada under the Stars and Stripes would be a benefit or a calamity. This statement is a modified echo of the talk that was heard in Britain, at the middle of last century about those "wretched colonies" of which it was hoped the mother country would soon be relieved. A great change in British sentiment towards the outlying dominions has taken place since then and it is impossible to believe that any doubt now exists among the great majority of the people there as to the need of preserving the empire and strengthening the bonds between its different portions.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

The deer are said to be wild around here. So are some of the dears.

The latest fall fictions tells of the number that were shot yet got away.

This would be a pretty good old world if we were only allowed to pick off a few people who are so obnoxious

I bet my money on Cardinals
And then the Yanks I backed,
And then I shifted ground once more
But again a winner lacked.

If I only was quite sure which side was going to win, I think I could pick up a little easy money.

The city bonds are going up and my finances are going down. How is it?

I'm going to buy some city bonds
If ever I get the cash,
But judging by the trend of things
I'm headed for a smash.

The editor says he published the story about Mrs. Ross in Florida so that local people could think how it would have been if yesterday's gale had been three times as fierce.

Power is the thing we're all worrying about. Some want it for the city and some for themselves.

Mitch Albert wants us to treat our visitors well. Zounds, man, I thought Prince Rupert always did that.

Aha! Oho! Whatho! A ship went ashore in a fog down near Vancouver yesterday despatches stated. And all the time there was a gale blowing here in which no fog could possibly live.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

OCTOBER 7, 1916
