HOOT GIBSON

— in —

"The Man in the Saddle"

A rip 'em up, mile-a-minute Western comedy-drama. Not as an ambitious young cowpuncher with a strong urge to become a hero who bungles, blunders, flounders, and fumbles his way to a laughable success. In pursuit of a hansom bandit he arrested the sheriff and brought to a hilarious climax the most awkward and ridiculous aggregation of blunders that ever befell a well-meaning "dumb-bell." Strong cast.

Hoot Gibson, Fay Wray, Charles Mailles, Emmett King, William Dyer, Sally Long and others.

There have been a lot of championship events this year. Now who is to be championship liar? The competition is still open.

It takes a clever person to count the squeaks in a Ford.

Now that Mackenzie King is safely in London and the Bishop has visited the Pope, the first grain ship is here, and Queen Marie is at New York, the world is safe for democracy.

It seems to me as if Prince Rupert elevator rates should be raised just to accommodate Vancouver and not to take the business away from that port.

The more you look at the pictures of some of our great men the more satisfied you are to remain among the hot polloi who are not great.
