Governor-General 'Touched' Civic Presentations

By ERIC SANDERSON

"You have just made me a superb present for which I am deeply grateful. It will be one of my most treasured gifts."

Canada's Governor-General, the Right Honourable Vincent Massey yesterday touched the hearts of the citizens of Prince Rupert when he presented to him by the local Chamber of Commerce a magnificent gift of a salmon. The Governor-General's address climaxed a busy day during which he addressed more than 800 school children, visited Miller Bay Hospital and made a tour of the Columbia Cellulose plant on Watson Island.

After the public reception in the drill hall, where hundreds of children and their parents went to see His Excellency, the vice-regal party paid an unofficial visit to the Civic Centre where Mr. Massey inspected the art exhibit and was taken on a tour of the building.

The Governor-General's main address followed a short speech to chiefs and chief counsellors representing the entire Skeena Agency in which he thanked the natives for gifts which they had presented.

F. E. Anfield, Indian superintendent, first read a speech of loyalty and welcome, then introduced the signatories of the address.

Chief Wallace Morgan of the Kitwanga people presented Mr. Massey with a valuable oil painting by his daughter, Judith, of the Wolf Cret—Lahkibu—and with it the rank of Chief AHK-de-ish.

Chief A. E. Nelson of Kincolith, on behalf of the Nishga people, presented him with a carved cedar box, and the chief of the Port Simpson people gave him a large carved wooden spoon that he said had been in his family for more than 100 years.

"I want to thank you dearly for all these presents," said the Governor-General.

Committal Ordered on Murder Count

James Dudoward, 25-year-old Port Simpson native, left here today under escort for Oakalla jail to await trial on a charge of murdering Wilfred White here last Sept. 5.

Dudoward was committed for trial by Magistrate W. D. Vance, bringing to conclusion a lengthy preliminary hearing at which thousands of words of evidence were taken.

Defence counsel Doug Hogarth in an eloquent address requested the magistrate to reduce the charge from murder to manslaughter but his plea was rejected and Dudoward was ordered to stand trial in a higher court, presumably the next assizes.

White, 49, died in Prince Rupert General Hospital a few hours after he was found with a badly gashed face and neck aboard the fishboat Laura Louise on the afternoon of Sept. 5.

Thomas W. Brown, QC, appeared for the crown.

Evidence disclosed the two men were involved in a fight aboard the boat during a drinking party.

Red Chinese Make Gain on Korean Hill

WEST SECTOR, Korea (CP)—Chinese Communist infantry attacking under heavy artillery cover nipped off the forward section of Little Gibraltar, a massive Korean hill position.

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, reported there was a lull at dusk, but then Chinese Reds launched a heavy assault under cover of more artillery.

Censorship prohibited giving exact position of Little Gibraltar. It has been identified however for many months with an area defended by the 1st Communist Division of which the 25th Canadian Brigade is a part.

First reports from the battle ground said a wave of Chinese overran one United Nations platoon position.

Russian Censor Regards Bible 'Undemocratic' Church Workers Say

VIENNA (Reuters)—The Russian censor in the Vienna radio station regards the Bible as "undemocratic," church workers complained today.

They said the manuscript for a special broadcast celebrating the 20th year of Cardinal Theodor Innitzer as a bishop was originally forbidden because it was not in keeping with "democratic" ideas.

But the censor compromised, they said, by cutting out chunks from the script, including a quotation from Genesis about the flight from the Garden of Eden, some quotations from the Book of Job and some general references to the morality of man after the fall.

Living Costs Up But Old Index Shows 1.1 Decline

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's new cost of living yardstick the consumer price index which went into operation today climbed one-tenth of a point during August to 116.1 from 116.0, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

This created a paradox in measuring living costs through price changes, for the old cost of living index, which the new index replaces, actually reported a 1.1 decline during August to 186.5 from 187.6.

The new index is the result of two years of study and revision in measuring price changes based on 1949 prices equaling 100. The old index was an operation for more than 12 years, based on 1935-39 prices equaling 100.

Herbert Marshall, Dominion statistician, told a press conference that indices will be published simultaneously for the next six months in order that industry and labor may make adjustments in labor contracts carrying elevator clauses.

The government decision gives Celgar company the go-ahead signal to start work on its development which is designed to produce lumber, sulphite pulp, newsprint and dissolving pulp used in the manufacture of textiles, plastics and explosives.

Further Drilling to Make Five Trillion Feet Reserve

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gas reserves in the Peace River area now are greatly in excess of the 20-year need of the Pacific northwest, George L. McMahon, president of Pacific Petroleum Ltd., said Wednesday in an address here.

He spoke at a joint luncheon of the B.C. Board of Trade and the B.C. section of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Mr. McMahon said: "The Peace River reserve may be doubled in the near future to five trillion feet by further drilling. This would assure almost 50 years' supply."

Natural gas from Peace River to the coast can be built by Christmas, 1953, if final approval is obtained from the United States.

He said application of approval now is before the Federal power commission in Washington.

All B.C. is looking forward to construction of the gas line which would bring cheaper fuel to most interior points in the province as well as to the lower Mainland and the West coast.

The proposed pipe would pass through Prince George, through the Cariboo country and through the Fraser Valley, branching off near Chilliwack with one section going to the border at Huntington, the other to New Westminster and Vancouver.

Meanwhile, opposition to granting approval by the U.S. for the pipe to cross the border is waged by the "oil states" of the U.S.

The Vancouver city council is meeting with the Seattle council early next week to urge that Washington city to press for approval. The pipeline terminus is temporarily planned in that state city.

Girl Claims Drug Pushers Canvass School

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 16-year-old girl was quoted Thursday by the News-Herald as saying in an interview that a gang of young pushers loitered near a city high school to lure students into the drug habit.

In a front page story she was quoted as telling reporter Harry Le Long that she, a student at the school, became addicted to drugs after stories told by these youths aroused her curiosity.

This young girl, whose name was withheld because of her age, testified Wednesday at a trial arising from disclosures that a number of teen-agers here had been taking drugs.

The case was not connected with this statement of pushers loitering near the school she attended.

200 MILLION CATS DON'T MIND Cat Lovers Ruffled Over Two Cat Weeks

SAUL PETT
 Latest truce negotiations have failed to bring the cat world, cats remain adamant. Cat Week, Inc., of Pa., insists "the original Cat Week" is Nov. 1. The American Feline Society is equally adamant. The "National Cat Week" is Nov. 5-11.

They claim the olive branch they didn't even attempt to offer, said Robert Pett, president of the Feline Society.

For both groups to meet over two cat weeks. In the interest of harmony, for the sake of 200,000,000 cats we're both trying to help, we ought to get together on one week. Having two only confuses the public.

From the other side of the fence, came this statement from national president Guy Bogart: "Personally, I wish both groups God speed. . . Anyone who will help inform the American public on the value and lovable qualities of all cats belongs to our fellowship."

Then Bogart added: "Well may England claim the lion as her symbol; the eagle for the United States and the bear for California; but with lifted tail and unfathomable eyes, the Cat remains as the true symbol of human civilization."

Cat enthusiasts the world over, Kendall said, have a warm spot for Governor Adlai Stevenson.

In 1949, in a message vetoing an Illinois bird lovers' bill to prohibit cats from running wild, the governor said:

NATURAL TO ROAM
 "It is in the nature of cats to do a certain amount of unescorted roaming."

Kendall wrote the Democratic presidential nominee, expressing the Feline Society's gratitude and extending to him "our very best wishes for success in November."

"This, however, is not necessarily a political endorsement," Kendall later explained to a reporter.

Kendall has had difficulty with the Truman branch of the Democratic Party. He wrote the president asking for a proclamation of National Cat Week.

Joseph Short, late press secretary to the president, answered: ". . . I am sorry to have to tell you that it would not be possible for the president to comply with your request. The fact is similar requests for special proclamations are so numerous as to preclude issuing any except those occasioned by a national emergency or when specifically authorized by Congress. . ."

Kendall didn't take this lying down. He wrote another letter to Stevenson asking for a cat week statement and asking him to use his influence with Truman for a presidential proclamation.

Stevenson hasn't answered the letter yet.

"I think they're just kicking the whole thing around in Washington," Kendall said.
