IMPROVEMENT IN RUPERT'S SPIRIT.

It's the spirit that counts. There has been a wonderful improvement the morale of Prince Rupert people during the past two weeks. It is possible that residents of this city and investors in it are more hopeful and optimistic than they ever were before, even in the boom days before the war.

And what has done it? Nothing more than the arrival of a tramp freighter to load a cargo of Mr. Baldwin himself will be filmed makwheat for the world's markets. Even when the elevator was built, even when it ing a speech very shortly, and it was leased to the wheat pool, even when they were told ships were coming, many people clung to what was Prince Rupert's pet saying: "It is a white elephant and will never be used." But how sudden has been the transformation of spirit. ing ministers and other prominent Tory No matter whether or not they are any better off financially than they were a politicians. year ago, no matter whether or not the weather is any better or not, no matter whether or not they have made or may make a nickel directly from the movement of grain through this port, everybody is feeling better about things. And well may everybody in Prince Rupert feel better. There may be no higher wages for the populace at large and real estate values may not-probably The electors would be able at the meetnever will-come back to what they used to be. In many cases there may be no ing both to see and to hear big men in concrete reason for the better feeling other than the knowledge that Prince Ru- a way that has been quite impossible pert is now on the eve of long promised commercial developments and that the before. city is soon going to be a place well worth living in, a place imbued with progress and prosperity, self-containing and no longer to be mocked at as being "a dead hole five hundred miles from nowhere."

INTERIOR 18 FEELING BETTER.

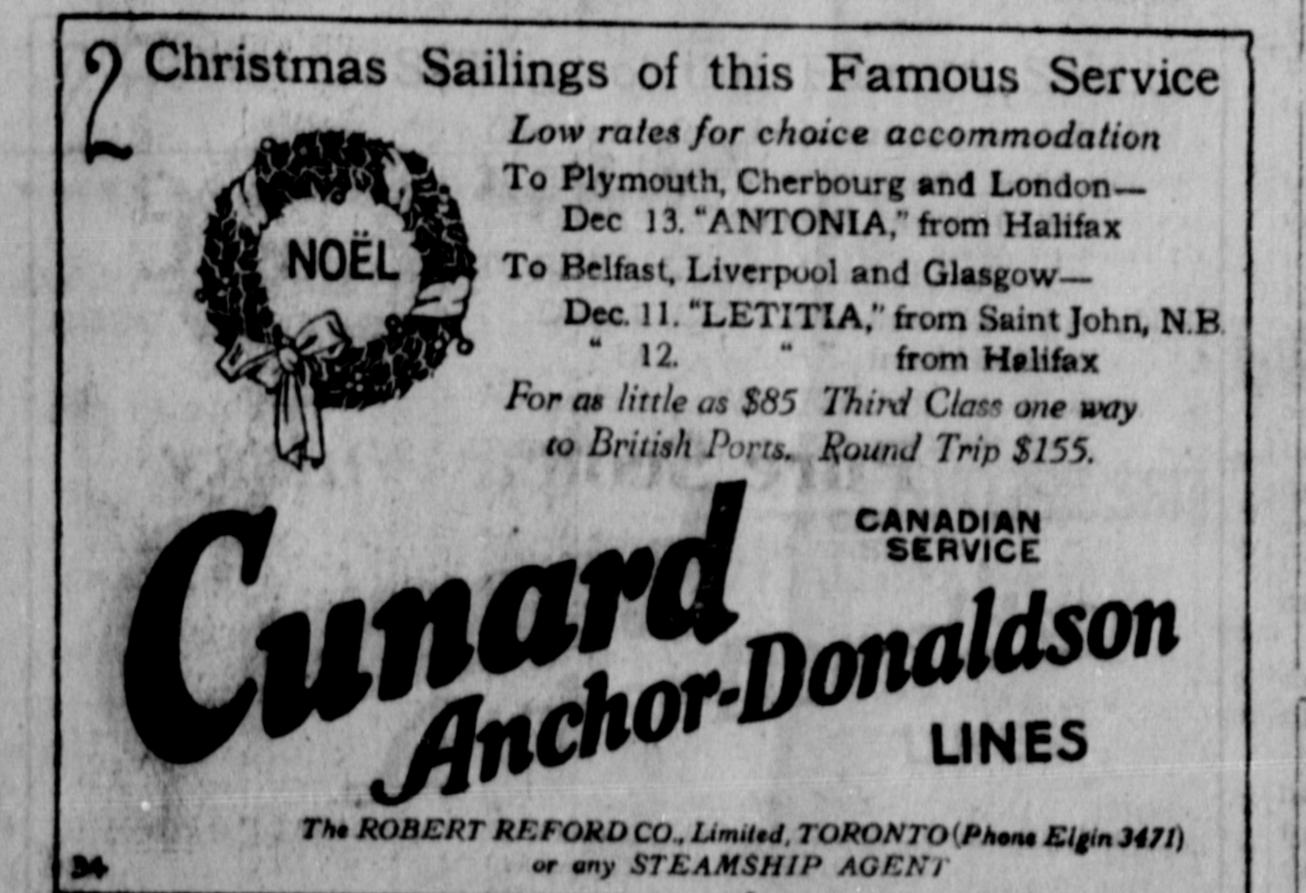

Interior points are also experiencing a rise in spirits since grain started moving over the line to Prince Rupert. There is the prospect of increased railway business through the enlarging of staff and crews. More business will also arise through more maintenance being required to the road with more traffic running over it. But, apart from the material point of view, conditions will be generally improved in the smaller interior communities in just such a proportion as they become improved in the terminus and district centre.

ALL TOGETHER FOR EMPIRE GOOD.

It is most gratifying to note the spirit of accord that prevails at the conference in London where Premiers of all Dominions of the Empire are now gathered. Greatly do their political views differ, some are Liberals and some are Conservatives, some are Socialistically inclined and others Nationalistic in their leanings, but all are working together for the betterment of the British Empire. Is there any better proof of the continued solldarity and unity of the various sections and parts of Empire? Is there any better refutation for the sometimes expressed opinion that some are drifting apart?

RED HUCKLEBERRY VALUABLE FRUIT.

At the recent Prince Rupert Exhibition there was an exhibit from the local Domestic Science School, showing the cuinary value of the red huskleberry. This excellent fruit goes to waste by the ton all round here and is not valued as it should be possibly because it is as common and plentiful as salal. Although Marguerite Clayton, John Patrick and my turn would be improved if one were worth the trouble of picking, while in the north it frequently attains the size of a small cherry and loads the bushes in the same way as red currants cover a the fruitful bush. The fruit is excellent for canning and jelly-making, and to many play, "Please Help Emily" by H. M. palates is preferable to the black huckleberry or blueberry, its near relation.

Supporting this irrepressible comedienne is a hand-picked cast, headed by Lawrence Gray and including in its personnel Armand Cortes.

"The Palm Beach Girl" is based on story by Byron Morgon and the better! Harwood. As the title suggests, it is laid in the smart society atmosphere of Palm Beach, but in the unfolding the plot, Miami Beach, Biscayne Bay, Lake Worth and other picturesque Flor- smaller, with more and larger rooms, ida backgrounds are glimpsed.

Bebe's role is that of a naive country girl who comes to Palm Beach to visit her wealthy aunts, and becomes is being made at Grasse, home involved in a series of screamingly French perfumes. funny and wildly thrilling adventures. Much of the fun and excitement springs from her involuntary efforts to operate a speed boat speedboat racing being the principal outdoor sport indulged in by the social elect. The sensational manner in which she wins the big boat race is the outstanding highspot in the film.

The spectacular wrecking of a handcar by a speeding Florida train, Bebe's fight with the bootleggers, her laughable experiences with the sheriff and her humorous antics among the society folk are other highlights worth mentioning. An appealing little romance in which Bebe and Larry Gray are the principals runs through the story. Gray is the sporting sciety millionaire with
