

Amateur Hockey Player Dies
TORONTO — John F. Hoy, a 28-year-old amateur hockey player, died of a heart attack Tuesday night after collapsing during a game at East York Memorial Arena.
Hoy, an employee of the Toronto Fire Department, had been playing hockey for many years and had never shown any effects.

...stories...
There was a coldness between the bear and myself when we first met on the ice-floe," said the boozie confidentially.
However, by a fortunate chance I had with me a quantity of Lamb's Navy Rum. After several tots of this dark and warming fluid, his attitude distinctly thawed. Before long we were fast friends.
This came when I discovered that we had food and water for fifteen years and rum for only a fortnight. I enjoyed rationing, of course, and this testing time exposed the gross in my companion's character. One night, I detected him searching me for the corker. Taking the only manly thing I slipped over the side with the rum while he was sleeping and, sustained by the body-building beverage, swam to the nearest licensed premises.
"A rum story!" murmured the wedding guest thoughtfully.
"Most generous!" replied the mariner with seamanlike clarity. "A Lamb's Navy Rum, if you please."

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Ezzard Charles, the cautious pugilist, starts back up the long comeback trail tonight when he fights Cesar Brion, a big, awkward galoot from Argentina, at Madison Square Garden.

Ezzard figures to win this one without too much trouble. Almost everyone over voting age has beaten Brion at one time or another. But in Ezzard's particular case, a simple victory will not be enough, and he knows it. If the former heavyweight champion is to become one of the foremost contenders for Rocky Marciano's title, he must win this one impressively, preferably by a knockout.
The situation really is a peculiar one. The Cincinnati Negro has proved on occasion that he comes close to being a great fighter. Actually, he won the crown back from Jersey Joe Walcott in their last meeting at Philadelphia, as several million televisioners can testify. Just about the only ones who didn't think Ezzard deserved the decision were the officials, and they had the vote.

And now, such a short time later, Charles finds himself on the outer fringe, striving desperately to get back in the running. A purely personal hunch here is that no matter what he does, Ezzard will never get a shot at Marciano. On a given night, Ezzard might cut Rocky into ribbons. The men who guide the new champion's destinies are among the smartest in the business. They will make few mistakes.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, playing captain of the American Davis Cup tennis team, is scheduled to leave for New England and Australia within a few days, and there still seems to be some uncertainty about who is going with him.
Though no official announcement has been made, our information is that Straight Clark of Los Angeles probably will go with Seixas. Ham Richardson, the former junior champion from Baton Rouge, will not leave for Sydney until late in November.

So far, only Seixas and Richardson have been named on the team. It has been taken more or less for granted that Tony Trabert would be given another leave of absence from the Navy to help challenge the Aussies for the cup. The wheels are turning to that end, but tennis insiders say the word hasn't come from Washington yet. Without Trabert, the challenge would not be a very serious one.

No Student Team For Senior Hoop

No high school team will be entered in city senior league basketball this year, the Prince Rupert Amateur Basketball Association has announced, following a pre-season meeting of the executive.

Decision was made in a move to improve the brand of senior league ball by limiting the league to three teams of full strength. One other last season team has withdrawn—the Elks—and players from this team will make up teams of Manson's, CCC300 and Gordon & Anderson.

Executive officers were ruffled, however, when Booth Memorial High School principal A. M. Hurst announced individual senior students would not be allowed to play in the city league.
"We consider this a big blow to senior basketball because there are several students of senior quality who would be a decided asset to our league," said an executive spokesman.

Mr. Hurst had given as his reason for his stand that some students devoted too much time to basketball and not enough time to their studies, he said.

Mr. Hurst, in an interview today, said Booth Memorial High School "has a senior team. It has applied to play in the senior league but has been refused."

"The high school team will play in whatever league the basketball association wants it to play, but it must play in a body. We cannot agree to have some of our better players taken from our senior team to play for other teams. It would weaken our team which is to compete against other high schools this winter."

"We are planning on entering the B.C. high school play-offs if the senior team is strong enough."

(Mr. Hurst said it was his interest and that of the school to promote basketball in every way possible.)

NEW SPONSORS

Several new sponsors will be represented on the hoop courts this season. There will be five intermediate teams, sponsored by Manson's, Bo-Me-Hi, Nelson Bros., General Motors and the Sports Shop.

Five junior teams will be sponsored by Annunciation Church, Sea Cadets and three teams by Bo-Me-Hi.

No further information was available at the meeting concerning the Association's plans for an Alaska-Prince Rupert three-way circuit outlined at the annual general meeting.

At present, outlook for the season is a heavy three-team senior basketball schedule, with as many "imported" teams of high calibre as can be attracted for exhibition games.

Crises in Africa Seen As Racial Tension Rises

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Commonwealth is facing three crises in Africa in the wake of mounting black-white bitterness and bloodshed.

Race hatred, labor unrest and a political upheaval flare anew in independent South Africa and the British East African colonies of Northern Rhodesia and Kenya.

In South Africa, for the first time in recent history a Negro mob over the week-end unleashed its simmering hate against white men, women and children—killing, looting and burning as they went.

In Northern Rhodesia's vital copper mines, 37,000 out of 39,000 Negro workers downed tools for more money and the right to do more skilled work.

In Kenya, on the East African seaboard, British troops have been flown in as a state of emergency was declared by the Nairobi government to help root out the Mau Mau secret society of tribesmen pledged to drive the whites into the sea.

The situations in the three countries which have produced the turbulence are not the same.

As far as is known, the Negro peoples in southern, central and eastern Africa are in no way linked with each other. They have no organized political movement. Their one common denominator is resentment against white rule and a deepening dissatisfaction with their own lot.

The outburst in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in which four white and seven non-whites were killed and many more hurt, seemed spontaneous. Reports from the Union stressed that the incident had no connection with the non-white campaign of defiance against apartheid laws—a campaign that has led to the arrest of nearly 6,000 since it was launched late in June.

RACIAL TENSION RISING

Nevertheless, racial tensions in South Africa have been rising steadily since the war. Moderates among white and black alike are scared of what the morrow may bring.

Production of copper has been halted by the North Rhodesian strike in four main mines. A similar stoppage before the Second World War led to big-scale clashes, and South Africa sent men and guns to help the colonial authorities crush the miners' resistance.

Some government officials here speculated the new stoppage in part expresses the Negroes' opposition to Britain's project for a new central African state. It would ultimately weld Southern and Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland into a new dominion.

The Mau Mau of Kenya is a movement whose exact strength is unknown to the authorities. Its terrorist actions in rural areas since September have been marked by an anti-white fanaticism. The secret society—originating from the intelligent Kikuyu tribe—has been blamed for 41 murders, 12 attempted murders, 12 assaults and 24 but burnings in the last few weeks.

The mystery men of the Mau Mau draw their strength mainly from the sympathies they have been able to invoke among their fellow Negroes in Kenya. Tens of thousands of them are landless. Those who have farms have gone hungry because of drought and pests. In the towns, workers' wages have not kept pace with rising living costs.

British officials here have always asserted that there is no strong, organized Communist movement in central or East Africa. In South Africa Prime Minister Daniel Malan's government has banned Communism.

At The Civic Centre

Interest in the afternoon crafts for adult members is growing. Copperwork is proving most popular with new designs in stock and others on order. Pictures are the main project, both large and small, and a supply of material is available at the classes.

Leather work is still popular and beginners are welcome in the afternoon or on Tuesday night. Carving has been tried by a few and some are starting their first project in this art. Success of this depends a great deal on continual practice to get the free wrist and finger movement which is only acquired after hours of work. Belts work up quickly and are appreciated as a gift. A handbag is the ultimate goal of those learning to carve at present.

The junior girls' crafts class got underway Tuesday afternoon with 10 girls in attendance. Mrs. Svenson was most pleased and hopes that others will turn out. Patricia Pearce has decided to make a lamp from a unique bottle. Fittings are on order as well as paint to complete this novel idea of hers.
