Canadian National Publication Tells of Some Anomalies in This District

With reference to the mild winter, there were quite a number of interesting incidents that news gatherers overlooked, such as the fact that in the lower Fraser river valley districts and on Vancouver Island strawberries and rapsberries were being enjoyed until well on into January, while 500 miles farther north, in the country east of Prince Rupert, flowers were blooming constantly throughout December. January and February, and, i one section gardens were being dug in January, says "The Latest RECEPTION TO News from the Last West," a RECEPTION TO News from the Last West," Canadian National Railways publication. The bears did not hibernate, and the wild geese flew south in November, but returned the following month and have Rev. remained since.

Farmers began plowing in the Lake district and Bulkley Valley. Central British Columbia, about the 15th of March. A Francois Lake correspondent writes: "Bouquets of pansies from gardens at Christmas and in Februgrass the first of March, the thermometer averaging only zero, none of the larger lakes ate in the historic village. frozen over, and ploughing likely are evidence of the mildness of the winter at Francois Lake."

Commenting on the speech of Senator Dandurand recently in England before the Canadian Club after his return from attending the annual assembly of the League of Nations the Financial Post of Toronto has this to say:

John Flewin and John Moody Named Wardens of St. Kath-

The annual vestry meeting of St. Katherine's Anglican Church at Port Simpson took place last Friday night. John Flewin was elected lay representative to the synod and people's warden and John Moody was elected clergyman's warden.

One of the most successful years financially in the history of the church was reported.

The meeting decided to buy and erect in the church a brass cross which will be placed in the chancel as a memorial to those from Port Simpson who served in the Great War, particularly those who gave up their lives for the country. Services are held monthly in the beautiful old St. Katherine's Church by Rev. W. F. Rushbrook of the mission boat Northern
