Britain Objects To Soviet Interference.

Undoubtedly the British government is doing right in making a protest to the Soviet against the sending of money to help in what was practically a revolutionary movement in that country. The Russians do not, apparently understand the British character. The Britisher has been trained to go after what he wants in a constitutional manner. If there is a general demand for something, it is usually obtained. All that is needed in a British country is to get a majority of the people to want something and they get it by the simple process of voting. In Italy they had to do it by force and similarly in Russia and Poland, but the English speaking countries are different. There is so much liberty in those countries that people often do not seem to know what to do with it.

In Canada we have not an ideal government all the time because we are not always an ideal people but we get along very well and should resent any interference in our affairs by Russia or any other country. We should resent it just as much from Mussolini if it were offered.

Railway Building In Peace River.

It seems rather a new thing to suggest that the building of railways must wait until the country is settled. It is contrary to practice heretofore in this country. If it is to be the method then the Hudson Bay Railway is certainly a mistake. The country there is not settled and yet the minister says that the railway will be justified because of the natural resources it will open up. Peace River is already partially settled and if a railway were built there, no one doubts but there would be a rush to get into the country. That is especially true because of the character of the land in the district. If people can go in there today and live from the produce of their farms it will be much more easy for them to do so when the railway is built. We are not suggesting that the railway should be built this year but we do feel that it is time to seriously consider the proposal with a view to early construction.

American Railways Built That Way.

Most of the American railways preceded colonization. The steel ran through the farming country and with it came the immigrants with the result that the lines began to pay almost immediately. The case of Jim Hill was mentioned yesterday. He was a man of vision and did not wait for the settlers to go ahead and endure hardships for years before the line came. If the G.P.R. is ready to build the railway it is to be hoped the Canadian government will treat them in noiggardly spirit. If the Canadian National is to handle the work, similar treatment should be given them. It lies for one of the two big systems which have a monopoly on the railway business of the country to show that the monopoly is a beneficent one and not the kind that retards business and stops development.

Ladies' Music Club To Be Congratulated.

The Ladies' Club is to be congratulated on its effect in giving Prince Rupert one of the best musical entertainments it has had heretofore. Those who attended the event Thursday evening to hear the visiting pianist and boy soprano say it was a great treat and they would like an opportunity to hear something equally good at some other time. Possibly next season the ladies will make an effort to repeat the experience by bringing other artists to the city. It is difficult work and entails a great deal of self-sacrifice but it is all in the interest of the cause of musical education and high class entertainment.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE SMALLER AS RESULT OF FLU IN THE CITY

Readjustment of Rooms to be Arranged After Holidays Allowing Westview Pupils to Attend Borden St.

The reports of the school principals to the School Board at the meeting last night showed a reduction in the average attendance owing to the prevalence of flu last month. At Borden Street the average percentage was 92.6, Booth School 90.63 and at Seal Cove it dropped to 77.24. The total pupils attending during the month was 767 of which Booth School had 421, Borden Street 296 and Seal Cove 50.

In reply to a question by Miss Mills as to how it was proposed to care for the extra pupils next term, whether by absorbing them at Booth school or by opening another room in the basement of her school, Miss Mills was told there was to be a general readjustment. All the pupils in Section two would be taken to Borden Street and the school would then be filled up as far as the accommodation allowed, taking the pupils in order of location making the dividing line between the two schools wherever it was found advisable. There would be eight grades only at Borden Street school taken from the pupils living in the district beginning at Section two and extending as far as possible in the other direction.

Complaint in regard to the bus service was made at the meeting. The secretary was instructed to interview the driver and insist that the bus must not leave before the appointed time. It was also mentioned that probably a bus service would not be needed next year under the new arrangement.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND MANUAL CLASSES ANNUAL EXHIBITION

Many Attended Interesting Event Yesterday Afternoon and Inspected Work

Many interested parents and others attended at the Booth Memorial School yesterday afternoon for the annual exhibition of handicraft produced by the domestic science and manual training classes under the direction respectively of Mrs. Darlington and Donald Ross, the instructors.

Outstanding articles among the manual training exhibits were a full-sized flat bottomed powder boat which had been built by Bruce Wilson and James Donaldson and a shot gun built and library table made by Jack Deane.

Several excellently sewn dresses featured the domestic science exhibit, girls of which classes served tea and cake during the afternoon as well as conducting a candy booth. The refreshments and candy had all been made on the premises.

PRINCIPAL DEFENDS COMMERCIAL CLASSES

High School Course an Elaborate One and Pupils Mostly Young When they Enter

Principal Brady of the High School yesterday made a report to the Board of Trustees on the work of the Commercial Class. He pointed out that graduates from the class were often too young to take positions and that gave the impression that people did not want them. In other schools pupils were usually older when they commenced. The course in the high school was an elaborate one and quite different from the short courses often given to commercial students.

To show what good work had been done, Mr. Brady stated that two silver medals had been won by students writing 50 to 60 words a minute, four bronze medals for those writing 40 to 50 words and eight certificates to those writing 30 to 40 words. He made this report because he had heard that derogatory remarks regarding the work of the school in this department had been made.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS IN PICTURE TONIGHT

"Never The Twain Shall Meet" is Made Mostly at Tahiti and Moorea and is Love Story

At last the South Sea Islands have been brought to the screen in a completely enchanting and effective story, "Never The Twain Shall Meet," adapted from Peter B. Kyne's novel of the same name. The picture had its first showing here last night.

Picturized in the South Sea Islands, "Never The Twain Shall Meet" brings to the screen a note of realism and a series of gorgeously beautiful backgrounds that vie with any ever recorded by the motion picture camera. Tahiti and Moorea are used as the South Sea Island backgrounds for this torrid story of love, romance and adventure. As Tamea, the half-caste princess, Anita Stewart has an unusual opportunity to portray the various facets of a dual nature — the passionate and stormy temperament of her native mother and the more civilized and reserved disposition of her French father.

The Island Spell
Bert Lytell has the role of the American youth who is lured away from his ambitions and civilized mode of living by the bewitching Tamea, only to be compelled to return to his former state of life by the knowledge that a continuance of his lazy existence in the islands will spell destruction to his moral and physical nature.

Huntly Gordon, as the newspaper man, does exceptionally interesting work in a difficult role, while Justine Johnstone, as a beautiful young woman of society, has a splendid opportunity for depicting a highly polished interpretation.

Semi-Humorous
Special mention should be made of the work of Lionel Belmore, whose role of Tamea's father is one of the outstanding characterizations of the year. Combining a semi-humorous situation with a tragic incident, Belmore accomplished the almost impossible on the screen in bringing to his portrayal a stoicism and philosophical understanding of the native Tahitian and the temperamental qualities of the well-bred Frenchman.
