BIG INSURANCE ON MOVIE STARS WHILE AT WORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Monetary value of movie stars to producers is indicated, among other ways, by the heavy insurance carried on several of them.

When a picture is in production, the general policy appears to be to insure the life of the star since so much depends upon the actor living through the period of work unhurt.

Mary Pickford is one of the most heavily insured women in the world, her policies aggregating $5,000,000. These cover life, accident, endowments, furniture and travel, as well as prints of several films she prizes highly.

Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, during the course of production sometimes carries insurance amounting to $2,000,000, the figure being smaller in proportion to the cost of the film play being made.

Personal insurance of Rudolph Valentino totalled approximately $1,000,000. He always was insured for an amount equal to the cost of the picture being made.

Buster Keaton has increased his personal insurance with the growth of his family. His beneficiaries now include his wife, Natalie Talmadge, their two young sons, and his mother and father. The total approaches $1,000,000.

Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, pays premiums on a $500,000 policy carried on Ronald Colman, one of his stars. Vilma Banky, another, had her eyes insured for $100,000 when the producer brought her to this country several years ago, and also has $250,000 to cover her life.

STORY OF MINKS WHO STOLE DUCKS ASSINIBOINE PARK

Once upon a time there was a family of ducks that thought itself safe beyond the need of the simplest precaution. When you live under the protection of the fathers of a city like Winnipeg, in a neat little pond all fenced round, in the midst of a beautiful park, and are gazed upon daily by good citizens who would never think of raising a finger against you, you may feel reasonably safe. Well, these little ducks, lived in bliss.

They were too ignorant even to know that such a proverb existed as "when ignorance is bliss," etc. Mamma and Papa Duck never told them to be careful about getting their feet wet, or to look both ways when crossing the street, or to be prepared for danger of any kind. Mamma and Papa were just as innocent and just as ignorant as their offspring. So when peril came it came quite unexpected.

You see, there were six little minks, who were brought up quite differently, who were, in fact, very naughty, and who knew that ducks were good eating. Somehow or other they broke into Assiniboine Park. They slunk to the duck pond, stealthily in the night. Then there was a commotion. The ducks flew and splashed and quacked in terror. They didn't know anything about these lithe little animals but they soon learned that they had wicked minds and sharp teeth. Two of the ducks were killed. The parks board got to know of it and soon the six little minks were stretched out dead, full of shot.

There are two morals in this tale: Don't be an ignorant duck; and don't be a bad mink.

SPORT CHAT

All boxing records for attendance and gate receipts appear certain to be shattered when Jack Dempsey crawls through the ropes in the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium at Philadelphia to defend his title against the ex-Marine, Gene Tunney, tomorrow. The expectations of Tex Rickard and Sesqui officials are that more than 130,000 spectators will pay approximately $2,000,000 to see the first heavyweight championship match in over three years, with the gigantic concrete structure, centered in the historic Exposition grounds, witnessing an unprecedented spectacle in sports.

Rickard reached astonishing promotion heights in 1921 when he attracted a throng of 90,000 fans who paid $1,600,000 to see Dempsey knock out the spectacular Frenchman, Georges Carpentier, in four rounds in the wooden saucer at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City. These records are high marks for boxing now but they promise to be substantially bettered at Philadelphia.

It has been only in recent years that boxing, especially in the heavyweight class, has reached such planes of frenzied finance. The era of big bowls and stadiums, plus great popular interest has made million-dollar affairs of these big title bouts, with Dempsey the central drawing card. The present champion has fought only six times in seven years, including the bout in which he took the title away from Jess Willard in 1919, but these half dozen appearances have attracted gate receipts approximating $4,000,000, with Dempsey's share running around $1,000,000. Dempsey has figured in the two biggest money bouts in the history of boxing to date. The Dempsey-Carpentier battle in 1921 brought receipts totalling $1,626,580 while the Dempsey-Firpo fight in 1923 brought $1,188,822.

FAMOUS BATTLES FOR THE HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

Fought Sharkey

James J. Jeffries defended his title against Tom Sharkey in 25 rounds at Coney Island on November 3, 1899, in a bout that was not satisfactory to either principal.

Both criticized Referee George Siler, Jeffries saying the challenger should have been disqualified, and the loser picturing himself the winner on points.

So much speed was developed when Sharkey pulled the glove from Jeffries' left hand that the referee could not call a halt until several blows had been exchanged with the champion sans one glove.

"No more picture machines for me," was a pronouncement from Jeffries after he had protested the heat caused by the high-powered Klieg lights throughout the bout.

Sharkey was in superb physical shape. So impressed was a writer of the period with the challenger's condition that he penned: "Had a king's ransom or his own life been the stake, Mr. Sharkey could not have asked to be better fitted for the battle."

DEMPSEY RICHEST OF ALL FIGHTERS

Is Assured Close to Half Million Dollars For Coming Fight With Tunney.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. — Jack Dempsey, assured the staggering sum of $475,000 for engaging Gene Tunney in defence of the world's heavyweight championship at the Yankee Stadium on September 16, is the richest of all boxers.

The title-holder already has earned more than $1,000,000 with his gloved fists, but mismanagement of enterprises in which he was interested cut deeply into his fortune. No matter if he loses his entire pile of money and holdings, he says he never will be an object of a benefit.

This is because he has a $200,000 trust fund out of which he will receive $1,000 a month as long as he lives. No matter what happens, the champion cannot touch the $200,000.

Is Big Spender

Dempsey is under tremendous expense. It cost him around $80,000 to live last year. This included an amount used to offset the deficit in operating his hotel at Los Angeles. Also, the expense of maintaining homes for his mother and father.

The "Manassa Mauler" since knocking Jess Willard over and winning the title in Toledo, O., July 4, 1919, has engaged in five contests. Including the Willard fight, Dempsey has fought only forty rounds and has earned $1,104,000, an average of $27,600 per round or $9,200 for every minute in the ring.

The financial statement shows: Jess Willard, 4 rounds, $27,500; Billy Miske, 3 rounds, $62,000; Bill Brennan, 12 rounds, $75,000; George Carpentier, 4 rounds, $300,000; Tommy Gibbons, 15 rounds, $240,000; Luis Firpo, 2 rounds, $400,000.
