Russia Has Contributed Two Million Dollars to British Miners' Strike

Action sharply criticized as being forced levy on wages of poorly paid Russian workers

Enormous Quantities of Cotton Goods Smuggled into Quebec Shown in Evidence at Ottawa

OTTAWA, June 4.—Evidence regarding the workings of customs officials on the Quebec-Vermont boundary was given at yesterday's sittings of the customs probe. The inference from the auditor's report presented shows that enormous quantities of cotton goods, some probably prison made, are pouring into the small towns on the border, finding their way into Canada without payment of duty.

The auditors found that the total of such goods recorded by freight and express companies in the past three years was valued at $1,400,000. Allowing for goods reshipped to United States points or cleared through the Canadian customs, it was found that a total quantity worth not less than $800,000 could not be accounted for.

Telford gave his address as Derby Lane, Vermont. He owns a warehouse just across the border in Derby Lane and refused to open the warehouse for inspection to accountants representing the customs probe committee on the ground of the warehouse being on foreign territory, taking the stand on the advice of his attorney.
