CITY COUNCIL DECIDES TO TAKE UP WITH RAILWAY COMPANY OUT-LET AT HAYS COVE

The sewer scheme proposed by the city engineer, which had been laid over for a week, was again held over while the matter of an outlet at the mouth of Hays Creek near the Drydock is taken up with the railway company. Alderman Perry urged that the scheme be adopted as the beginning of the general sewer system for the city, but other aldermen wanted further information and more idea of what the cost of the completed system would be. All the aldermen who took part in the discussion were anxious that the sewer work should proceed but wanted to go slowly in the matter of expenditures until it was known just where the city stood and what the entire cost was likely to be. The motion of Alderman Brown to postpone closed the debate.
