Give Good Welcome To Our Visitors.

There is one thing Prince Rupert can always do and that is extend a hearty welcome to visitors. In that way we make them feel that this is a good place to visit and they carry with them pleasant remembrances of the city.

Next week H. M. S. Curlew will be here. The officers and men doubtless remember the good time they had when they were here before and they are glad to return. They will be here for some days and Prince Rupert people will not forget to show them what can be done locally. Already a good many events have been arranged in their honor.

Don't Believe Everything You Hear.

Our advice to the people of this district now that the election is approaching is not to believe everything they read and hear. The difficulty is that most of us believe the things we want to believe. For instance, the man who was born a Conservative and has always voted Conservative, is ready to believe anything that supports his party but discredits as lies everything that favors the other groups. So with the Liberals and the Laborites and the Progressives. The principle is the same. Happily there are a lot of people who are not tied and bound by any party and on them rests the salvation of the country. They are the citizens who turn elections, the controlling elements to which all parties pander. Win them and the election is won. To them we suggest that they weigh well everything they hear and sift well everything they read. Do not believe it because it is in this paper or that. People who send out despatches are human just the same as the rest of the people. This is a time for serious and deep thought and careful research.

Problem in India Largely Religious.

Religion has always been a fruitful cause of strife. After many hundreds of thousands of years of paganism, there arose a prophet in Israel who preached peace on earth and good will to men, and since his time his followers have been quarreling among themselves as to which are his true followers.

In India today the chief strife is between Hindus and Mohammedans. Each has his own method of worshipping the higher power and each objects to the method of the other. Millions of Hindus disagree with other millions of Mohammedans and sometimes they disagree with such effect that bloodshed ensues.

Tolerance is the one thing we lack today. We are all too prone to look for the evil in our neighbors, our contemporaries or our religionists instead of searching out the good points and finding out where we agree rather than where we differ.

Nature has made us all different. Members of the same family differ in disposition and in appearance and we have many differences in religious matters. What is necessary is to agree to differ.

It Is An Issue For Canadians.

Now that it has been raised the constitutional issue will have to be fought out in the coming general elections, says the Manitoba Free Press. Those who imagine that the Governor General's action should not be reviewed by the people of Canada are trying to blind themselves to the facts of the situation. It has been announced that the action of Baron Byng will be a matter for consideration at the next Imperial Conference. Prof. Arthur Berriedale Keith of Edinburgh, the noted constitutional authority, writes in the Manchester Guardian that "the matter is one far transcending Canadian politics because it affects the status of the Irish Free State." In view of the import of the Governor's decision to the other Dominions and to the British peoples themselves it is folly to hold to the opinion that the matter is not one of vital concern to the people of Canada. The Manchester Guardian pointed out this week that if the United Kingdom and the Dominions have an equality of status then the precedents in relation to the King that hold in one should hold in another, and that when Baron Byng created a precedent in Canada by refusing to take the advice of his prime minister that precedent will have to be taken into consideration in the relations of the King to the Prime Minister of Great Britain. Thus the people of the United Kingdom have, too, a vital concern in the precedents established in Canada.

DELEGATE REPORTED AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

Sid Johnston Told of Big Deings at Denver, Col., When 10,000 Delegates Attended.

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club Sid Johnston, delegate to the annual international convention, which took place this year at Denver, Colorado, reported to the local club. He told of the wonderful gathering of ten thousand people and the manner in which they were entertained by the people of the Colorado city. Thousands of automobiles were kept at the disposal of the visitors all the time and there were rounds of entertainment in addition to the business sessions and public addresses. Throughout the time there was not a dull moment. Wives of the delegates were looked after by the ladies of the city and everything possible done to make the visitors have an enjoyable and instructive time.

One of the entertainments was a Rotary pageant in which 1,000 people took part and at which 30,000 spectators were present.

Several visitors were present at the luncheon and W. T. Chute, who is here for a couple of months, sang most acceptably.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

WHEN a woman tells another woman not to tell because she promised another person not to tell, that's a secret.

A SECRET is something that is told with much more relish than ordinary gossip.

HERE is a story

But don't you tell.
My friend told me
And I know full well
She would be mad

If I let you know;
So don't tell anyone
I told you so.

WHEN a man boasts of his decency you may be sure it is a recent achievement.

IF you are not feeling well enough for work, how in the name of Diogenes do you expect to enjoy a holiday?

ONE of the most famous after dinner speeches recorded in history is that of the man ten years married who remarks: "Now sweetheart, let us do the dishes together."

A THING of beauty is a flit forever.

WITH young married people, the thing to worry about is not their future but their present.

CANADIANS must be a wicked lot else why should they be punished by another election this year?

"I HOPE we shall meet again," said the Prince Rupert merchant, said last year when he added up his losses.

"THE eyes have it," declared the short skirted flapper who presided at the men's meeting.

IF only the hot air generated and wasted at the forthcoming election could be stored and utilized, there would be no fuel bill next winter.

FIGURES don't lie any more. They did once when girls padded their limbs and covered themselves with long dresses.

IF you employ a night watchman to guard your character, your reputation is likely to suffer.

HEALTH is a thing you do not get out of bottles.

THERE'S one thing about hopped haired girls. Some look funnier than others.

PEOPLE used to speak sarcastically of three sexes, males, females and curates. Now they have to add flappers.
