MARKED DECLINE IN ART OF CONVERSATION

(Victoria Colonist)

The decline in the art of conversation is perhaps due to the dogmatism of the age and to the pursuit by people of the doctrine of self-determination which! has been so much interpreted to mean exactly what the words! imply. In the art practised in its higher forms there must be mutual sympathy and reverence. It is the absence of these which has caused conversational power! to decline. The people who talk best are those who read well. but those who are best read as! often as not do not wish to subject their thoughts to the intolerance of ignorance.
