MODERATOR OF UNITED CHURCH GIVES ADDRESS

Dr. Pidgeon Criticizes Fundamentalists in Meeting of General Council at Montreal

MONTREAL, June 11. — (By Canadian Press). — "There is but one danger that I see before the United Church of Canada—that it should be dwarfed into a sect instead of developing as a church," was the declaration of Rev. Dr. Geo. G. Pidgeon, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, in the course of his moderatorial sermon in connection with the second annual meeting of the General Council of the United Church which opened here yesterday. "No enemy from without can injure the church of the living God, but failure of the spirit within may stunt her growth and rob the nation of the service which her own church should render."

In reviewing the work accomplished by the United Church during the first year of her history, Dr. Pidgeon stated that the Church was proud to present to the world the statistics of what she had accomplished as evidence of the success of her venture in faith. Her numbers and resources, present and potential, her seats of learning and the scholarship which adorned them, the money which she raised, the congregations which had been organized, the buildings which had been erected, the numbers which had been enrolled, the workers trained and commissioned for service—these, he thought, were the tests of a church's vitality and the signs of the blessing of God. They constituted a record of which any church might be proud.

It's a Long, Long Pull to Jenkin's — and when you get there, it seems a longer pull home with the milk! Why worry about it? Have a supply of the new KLIM, powdered full-cream milk, at your camp or cottage—it's just like having a cow in your own yard!

The new KLIM packs small—but bulks large when water is added and has the flavor of fresh pasteurized milk. It cannot sour or spoil. It is pasteurized, therefore SAFE. It is easy to mix. Replace the water, and you have whole full-cream milk—rich, wholesome, appetizing, pure.

Dr. Pidgeon declared that his "You must accept statement of criticism of modern fundamentalism, so-called, was not that it considered it necessary to 'contend for the faith once delivered to the saints';" there were certain truths without which the church could not live and the world could not be redeemed. It was that modern fundamentalists insisted on certain interpretations of the old doctrines and adder certain others which they considered necessary for the preservation of the saving truth. The Moderator stated that to affirm their faith in a living Saviour was not sufficient for them; the men whom they condemned were sound in evangelical doctrines.

MESSAGES FOR EVANGELIST

Telegraph Offices at Edmonton Flooded With Wires for Lady Supposed to be There

EDMONTON, June 11. — Edmonton interest in Aimee Semple McPherson, missing Los Angeles evangelist, which flamed into sudden intensity with the report of "Inspector" Middleton, local private detective, that he had the woman under surveillance here, waned again when the evening papers came out with the news that the sleuth's mystery woman was Mrs. B. T. Potter, a well known Los Angeles artist in Edmonton on a professional visit.

Following the Edmonton report local telegraph offices were flooded with wires addressed to Aimee Semple McPherson, among them being a long message from an enterprising legal firm in Los Angeles offering to act for the missing evangelist in the divorce suit said to be pending against her and in which the wife of the radio announcer employed at the Angeles temple is naming Mrs. McPherson as co-respondent.

All the messages were returned to their senders by the telegraph companies.

In addition to the wires to Mrs. McPherson, Los Angeles and San Francisco papers telegraphed principals of the "No, No, Nanette" company, which comes from Los Angeles, for stories of the finding of the missing evangelist, and in their enthusiasm some members of the company positively identified the alleged mystery woman as Mrs. McPherson, taking the precaution to add that if Mrs. Potter was not the missing evangelist, "the likeness was uncanny."

Reports from the south still indicate that the police believe Mrs. McPherson was drowned and her body washed out to sea, despite another story received that the evangelist, who was an exceptionally strong swimmer, was seen to emerge from the ocean under a pier a few minutes after she had been reported missing, and to enter a waiting automobile in which she was whisked away.

Old and New

"At the close of the late war," said Dr. Pidgeon, "everyone was talking of reconstruction. The word escaped from the study into the street, and was used by the thoughtless to conceal their thoughtlessness as well as by the thoughtful to express their aspirations. Those who faced seriously the need of the hour fell naturally into two classes. There were those who believed that we had to rebuild the old system and get back to the old conditions as speedily as possible. There were others who held that the old system could never be restored. It was self-destructive; the world catastrophe was just the culmination of its own tendencies. The rebuilding had to be on lines entirely new if the world was to escape the enmities and tragedies of the past. The struggle of the last six years in the western world has been largely between these two classes—the people who wanted to return to the old relations and antagonisms with all the machinery for future wars, and the people who sought to bring in the new order for which our men really died.

Be Brave and Free

In concluding his address Dr. Pidgeon said: "In her life also the church must be brave and free. It will be fatal if the United Church in any community or in the country as a whole should think of contending for its own interests as against those of other religious bodies, or without regard to the welfare of the community. 'He that loveth his life shall lose it.' To think of herself will mean sacrificing the interests of the Kingdom of God. The welfare of all is her responsibility. The spirit of her Master moves her to spend and to spent for all whom she can serve. If she needs no ramparts to protect a living faith, then she needs no safeguards to surround the interests of a living church. Self-forgetful devotion to the good of all, nay more, self-investment in the people's higher life is the distinctive principle of Christianity. Christ Himself lived and died by this law, and His Church must tread the way the Master went. This ideal which fired Zachariah's imagination will bring our own loved Church nearer realization of the glory of the Lord in the midst of her and of His presence as a wall of fire round about her."
