SPORTS ROUND-UP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Basketball League, oldest of the professional cage groups, has been disbanded because two of its member teams insisted upon playing men who were involved in last year's "dumping" scandals.

This has stirred up a lively debate between those who feel that the erring athletes should be given every chance to rehabilitate themselves and a large segment which contends that there is no place in sports for a player who once had been caught defrauding the public.

"We made a mistake," one of the boys was quoted. "Do we have to go on paying for it for the rest of our lives?"

Not necessarily. A man who takes samples from a bank and serves his time can find a job when he gets out, but they don't put him in the teller's cage again. It's a rule.

We have just heard, courtesy of Umpire Larry Goetz, of the time Casey Stengel, then playing with Brooklyn, ran afoul of the one and only Bill Klem.

Casey, ordered by Uncle Wilbert Robinson to bunt, laid one down the first-base line. Almost immediately it rolled outside and the old arbitrator's clarioned "foul" before Stengel could even start to run.

But as the ball neared first base it struck a pebble and veered back into fair territory. The opposing first baseman picked it up, stepped on the bag, and Klem yelled "out." He then strolled over a few steps to speak to Robinson.

"I'm sorry, Robby," he said placatingly. "I guess I was a little hasty in calling that one. But it did start outside, as you saw, and I had no way of knowing it would come back in. I'm sorry, Robby."

All the time this was going on Stengel just stood at the plate with a stunned look. He didn't say a word. Suddenly Klem wheeled on him.

"As for you, you nut," he belted, "go back to the bench and sit down!"

The full extent of the outrage didn't occur to Casey until he was back in the dugout. Then he proceeded to demolish the water cooler.

"And for that," he stormed, "I get called a nut."

Remember When

Gus Bodnar of the Toronto Maple Leafs hung up the record for the fastest goal scored by a first-year National Hockey League rookie. Playing his first game against New York Rangers nine years ago tonight, Bodnar scored 15 seconds from the opening bell.

Rugby Ace Spurs Retirement After 13 Seasons

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Krol, Toronto Argonaut dashing triple-threat star of a few years ago, admits he hasn't his old zip, but he won't concede yet his football gear should be packed up for good after this season.

The 33-year-old veteran "King Krol" to thousands of fans when he was helping Argonauts to three successive Grey Cup titles in 1945-46-47, still is in the line-up every week. But what he would like to do and what Coach Frank Clair has him doing is something on which the two don't entirely agree.

Clair, who came to the Toronto club after Krol's most successful years, has him doing little else but kicking—a job he does almost as well as when he was in his prime after breaking into senior football with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in 1939.

COOL COMPETITOR

But Joe, a cool, relaxed competitor who got Argonauts out of many a tight spot in the past, believes he still can help Argonauts for a few years with his passing and running.

The five-foot-nine, 207-pound halfback admitted in an interview that naturally after 13 years in senior competition he has slowed a bit. But while most players at his age are washed up, he wasn't among them yet.

"I've felt better the last couple of years than at any time since the 1946 season," he said. "I know I could be a lot more valuable if I was used oftener. I still can run and pass and there's always the threat of a quick kick if I'm in the backfield. It's up to Clair though and I'll go on doing what he wants."

This season he is reported to be receiving a minimum of $4,000, which, added to his income as an insurance salesman and his partnership in a Toronto sporting club, probably puts him in the five-figure class.

His football pay may be finished after this season as Clair likely will look around for an import who can kick and be used either as an offensive or defensive player as well. There was some doubt that Joe would even make the team this season, but Clair didn't have a kicker as dependable as Joe.

He's still booming punts 50 to 65 yards and his ability to get them away while rushed amazes the fans. He has kicked five singles and eight converts but no longer holds down the convert-kicking job. He took over after import Bob Heck was released but when he missed a couple in a vital game Clair left him on the bench and called in snap Red Ettinger to do the job.

Joe's scoring points this season also include a touchdown, his first in two years. It came when Argos trounced Montreal Alouettes 43-0, the big lead they piled up early giving him the chance to carry the ball once again. Quarter Nobby Wirkowski kept feeding him the ball, much to the delight of the crowd who still remember when Krol and Royal Copeland were the mainstays of the team with their famous Krol-to-Copeland pass play.

Toronto fans and thousands of others in the other Big Four cities will be a little sad to see Joe reach the end of his playing days. Many regard him as one of the greatest of all Canadian players.

CURLERS PREPARE FOR NEW SEASON

A meeting of all skips of the 1951-52 rinks has been called for Monday night at 8 p.m. at the curling rink to draw up a list of players for this season.

Executive members, at a meeting last night, announced that if work is completed curling will begin Nov. 15.

There will be no skating prior to the opening of the rink as had been planned but sessions will be held during the Christmas holiday season.

Club members have been working at the rink for the past several weeks and have painted the club on the inside and installed lockers.

Work on the drainage expected to be completed by Workmen finished drilling in bedrock last night and was scheduled to be done this morning.

When completed, large quantities of water around the rink will be able to drain off.

Officials also announced that the heating system had been remedied.

At least 30 rinks are expected to compete in this season's petitions.
