WEATHER HERE TO BE WARMER

Climate is Slowly Changing and Northern Part of Continent is in Swing of Milder Years

Our climate is slowly changing, decade by decade and century by century, writes Henry H. Clayton, a leading meteorologist, for Science Service. Although the temperature year by year fluctuates widely from the average ,there is an underlying upward trend in the northern United States and Canada like a slowly rising tide, while in the south the trend is the other way. Thus the contrast between the weather of the north and south is diminishing and the climate of the country as a whole is ameliorating.

Investigations have proved that climate, like the weather, or like the tides, is in a continuous process of ebb and flow and hundreds or even thousands of years may intervene before the same condition returns.

Weather Fluctuation

In intervals of time measured by many thousands of years the climate of a place like New England may change from a condition where ice covers the land surface to a depth of thousand of feet to conditions so mild as to be almost tropical.

Even in the course of several centuries the climate of New England may oscillate between cold conditions similar to those of Labrador and mild conditions similar to those which prevail on the coast of Virginia at the present time.

This progressive rise of temperature is indicated by observations taken all over the northern part of the United States. In St. Paul, Minnesota, the temperature of the decade ending with 1925 averages two and eight-tenths degrees warmer than that of the first decade of observation from 1859 to 1868.

Gradually Warmer

In Canada the rise has been even more pronounced. At Winnipeg for the ten years ending with 1925 the average yearly temperature is four degrees higher than that of the first ten years of observation ending with 1884. The rise at other Canadian stations like Port Arthur and Dawson is even greater. In Alaska the period covered by the observations is comparatively short, but even these show a progressive advance in the mean temperature taken in ten year averages. But the existence of milder conditions in Alaska is best told by the retreat of the glaciers ever since they were first observed.

This climate change is all the more remarkable because in the southern part of the United States the trend is the other way.

Will this continue with backward ebbs and flows like an incoming tide until we are ushered into the mild temperature of an interglacial period? Or, are we now on the crest of some warmer period from which there will be a retreat?

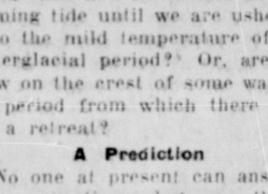

A Prediction

No one at present can answer these questions, but one thing seems certain, since we now are in a long swing of milder years in the northern United States and Canada, we can be reasonably sure that there will not be a return to the cold winters and cool summers which characterized the years around 1816, although it is quite possible that the temperature of the coming winter or coming summer may be below the mean of the past ten years.

MISUSE OF PROPAGANDA.

Editor Daily News.

Will you kindly insert the accompanying letter from the pen of C. H. Ackerman, of Peterborough, Ont., as published in the Toronto Saturday Night of January 2.

Mr. Ackerman deals with the subject of propaganda and its effect upon the minds of the public, and in especial deals with the manner with which some newspaper owners take it upon themselves to mould public opinion in the attempt to discredit the standing of public men. His letter is timely in that it appears to exactly cover the case of the borrowed propaganda which you have seen fit to publish in your editorial column of yesterday as touching the standing of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in the Conservative Party.

GEORGE BUSHBY.

Editor, Saturday Night.

The fullest realization of the potency of that word propaganda must now be coming home to the Canadian electorate.

The election is over and it would appear that the Dominion of Canada is now more divided unto itself than it was even before the election.

The purpose of those individuals who control cross sections of this Dominion North and South, through their appreciation of the value of that word propaganda have to the best of their ability performed their duty. But is is questionable as to whether their action has served in any way the interests of the electorate generally.

Meighen and Quebec

It is true that in the province of Quebec propaganda has there taught the electorate that the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen was the man responsible for the enforcement of conscription, a man of very determined Imperialistic tendencies and a man entirely unqualified to lead the Conservative party. It is just here that, in the opinion of the writer a justifiable suspicion arises that use of that word propaganda is not being used in a way that is beneficial or enlightening to those people who after all are the unsuspecting victims, and the result is either chaos or the bending of the victims to the will of that person who so fully realizes the value of that comparatively new weapon.

In the West the value of the word has been taken advantage of to mould the opinion of the farmer to the point where only an exceedingly low or no tariff will be acceptable.

In the Maritimes propaganda has been used to accentuate the fact more or less effectively that they are isolated from the rest of the Dominion by a province having little or no confidence in the ability of Mr. Meighen.

Irresponsible propagandists will before very long succeed in driving out of politics those who are making a supreme effort in the race of very strong odds to place before the electorate the issues upon which the success or failure of this Dominion depends.

General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien once said that he could pretty well form an opinion of any military unit by its Commanding Officer. If its Commanding Officer was efficient the unit itself would measure up to that standard of efficiency.

Chaotic Result

Propaganda has played a most effective part in this campaign and the chaotic result must be attributed to the correspondingly chaotic frame of mind of those propagandists who are responsible.

The Canadian electorate should be entitled to greater consideration than has been accorded recently to them if this Dominion is going to uphold the reputation she has already established.

Propaganda has become a powerful weapon because the masses of people are, generally speaking, intellectually lazy, indifferent or unsuspecting. Policies and carefully prepared schemes are formulated by people who have carefully studied the requirements of this Dominion that will serve the very best interests. These policies are announced, whether they be from the political leaders or from individuals who understand our needs.

At once these policies come under the scrutiny of individuals who own or control a newspaper and these individuals at once or at their leisure if it so suits their purpose proceed to destroy and to defeat the attempt that is being made to promote these policies.

Readers' Indifference

And the great trouble is that they can do it by their knowledge of the indifference of their readers.

A Montreal paper, "The Star," has seen fit to discredit the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Certain British newspapers have seen fit to attempt to undermine the Baldwin government. If all the readers of these papers were to stop and carefully study and analyze the qualifications of these two statesmen as compared with the owners of these papers who have amassed huge fortunes there can be no doubt as to their verdict.

The freedom of the press has, up to the time when newspaper owners came to realize the value of that weapon propaganda, been more or less respected by the reading public. So soon as the reading public realize they are being led by newspaper owners—newcomers into the profession since the power of this force has become a realization—then there is bound to be a suspicion driven into their minds that their weight is being used by people who are entirely incompetent.

Such a revulsion of feeling must result sooner or later in the placing of certain restrictions upon the press, or else some control that will enable the reader to feel satisfied that unbiased views are reaching him by those of intellectual qualifications having a thorough knowledge of the requirements of a Canadian citizen.

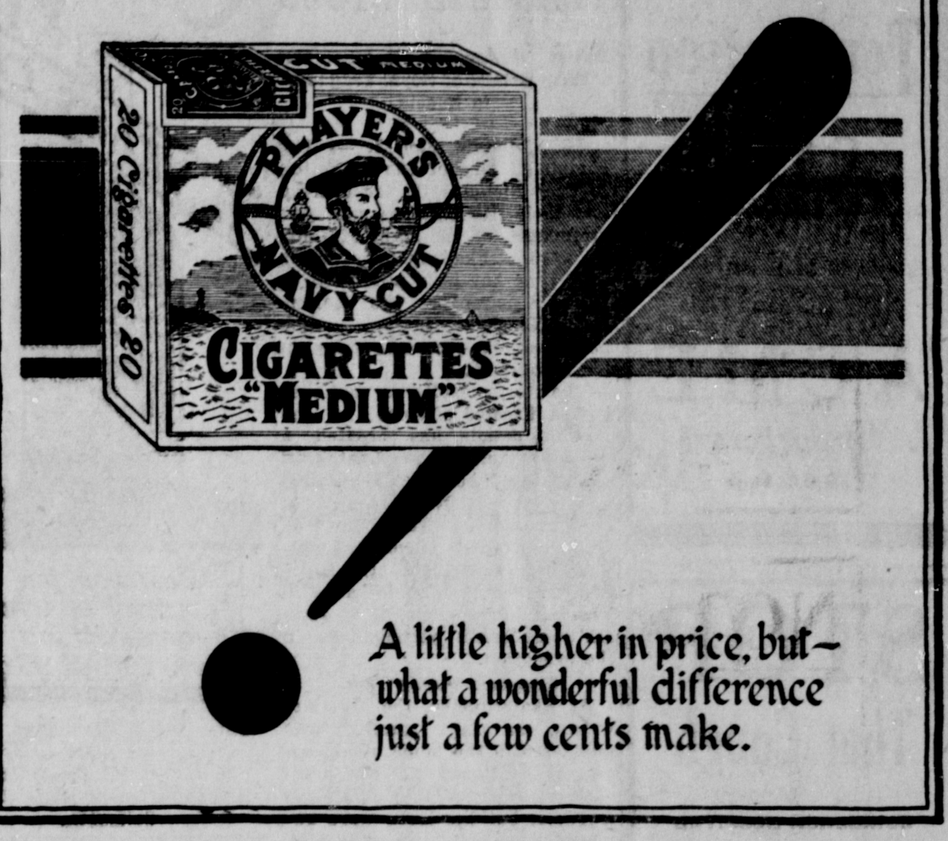

C. H. ACKERMAN.

"Was Soon Able To Sleep Well"

The usual experience of nerve-racked people who use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

When the nerves are starved and depleted you become restless, irritable and suffer from loss of sleep. The regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon lifts you out of this condition by supplying to the system the elements of Nature from which nerve force is created.

Mrs. H. N. Tardell, Harrowsmith, Ont. writes:—"My nerves were in a very bad state, and I did not know what it was to have a good night's rest. I could not eat, and never felt well. After taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a few days I was able to sleep well at night. My appetite also returned, and I felt stronger and better, and after taking three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was quite well."

A little higher in price, but—what a wonderful difference just a few cents make.

NOT HERE, ANYWAY.

A chairman of a trustee board was recently visiting a school room and the teacher was showing off the knowledge of her scholars.

Teacher—Johnny, who signed the Magna Charta?

Johnny (without delay) — I didn't.

Teacher (disgustedly)— Take your seat.

Chairman — Call that boy up again. I don't like his looks and I believe he did.
