ENGLISHMEN ARE WELCOME

Fort Fraser Man Writes to English Newspaper Telling of Life on Canadian Farm

ENTHUSES OVER CLIMATE

Says He Has Health, Beautiful Surroundings and Some Land of His Own

LONDON, Eng., Mar. 15.—(By Canadian Press)—"As for Englishmen not being wanted in Canada—forget it. It is a myth." So declares Julian P. Myers, writing from View Point Farm, Fort Fraser, B.C., to the Manchester Guardian. The letter is brim full of optimism and the joy of success. Mr. Myers is a Manchester man of 21 years residence in Canada. His rugged children, he says, "don't know what it means to go easy on cream and eggs," and, although he has had his "ups and downs" and understands the rigours of Canadian winters, he has strength in the place of the puny weakness of his youth and he has real wealth of living where he might have had poverty. But let him speak for himself. The letter follows:

Not a Failure

"During the past year or so I have often read articles in various English papers that would lead one to believe that Englishmen are not wanted in Canada, and that the English city man is a failure and a joke out here. How untrue that is! Tonight as I sit in my cozy little farm home, the children (rugged little specimens that don't know what it means to go easy on butter, cream, milk, eggs or other products of the farm) safely tucked away in bed, my mind reverts to old days and old frineds. Once again I am a puny and pale-faced youngster attending a kindergarten school. I am often ill and my mother is fighting fog and wet and epidemics all the time in her efforts to keep me well. Then I am at Board School. I think of some of my old associates and relatives and of spots that bring back the pleasant associations of the past. Yet over all there floats a veil of fog and dampness. I see little children in poverty and distress. I see healthy young men and women crying for work—for just the previlege of earning their daily bread.

"I get up from my chair and opening the door, step out onto the verandah. The air is cool and crisp, the stars are shining over head. Before me the Nechaco River winds tortuously along past banks covered with pine and willow and poplar. To the west the lights of the little village may be seen. From the stable comes the occasional moo of a cow and the sound of the horses contentedly chewing their feed. Save this all is silence.

It is a Myth

"It is nearly 21 years since I left Manchester, an inexperienced city fellow, equipped neither physically nor by training for a farmer's life in the West. I have had my ups and downs, but never have I been discriminated against or gone hungry for lack of work. It is true that at times I long for the theatres and another glimpse of city life; but that is only a passing pang. I have better and bigger joys than those of the movies. I have health, the joy of living amid beautiful surroundings in a wonderful climate, a piece of land of my own that I can call home, and that subtle pleasure that comes to those who live under pioneers conditions. Of course, it must not be forgotten that Canada is of huge extent and that conditions within its boundaries naturally vary. British Columbia is the most English of all the provinces and this particular part of British Columbia is populated very largely by people from English towns who previously had no knowledge of farm life. They all appear to be getting along—at least they are well fed, adequately clothed, and seem to be enjoying health and happiness and independence. Like myself, they found a welcome awaiting them here. As for Englishmen not being wanted in Canada—forget it. It is a myth.

Farm Life Healthy

"I am now—at 42 years—a strong man. The farm life of Canada has done that for me. I spent over 12 years on the prairies and thoroughly understand the rigours of the winters there, but no Lancashire man need fear the climate in any part of Canada. I warn old folks not to come—don't transplant old trees. A certain class of English snob is met out here occasionally—very objectionable. Usually it takes a year or so of real work, and then he is as good as any. In my opinion £250 will not settle and equip a whole family on the land here, although a few might manage it for this sum."

HARRIS TELLS ABOUT MINING

Says Active Season is in View in Hazelton District This Year

Prospects are bright for an active and successful mining season in the interior states W. S. (Duke) Harris, well known pioneer operator of New Hazelton, who is a visitor in the city. Mr. Harris himself will be in charge of work on three promising properties in the Hazelton area. Just as soon as weather conditions permit, operations will start on the Silver Cup, Sunrise and Hazelton View properties. The Silver Cup and Sunrise, silver-lead mines, are located in the vicinity of Nine Mile. It is expected that a carload of ore a month will be shipped from the Silver Cup and operations on the Sunrise will consist of further development work. From the Hazelton View, otherwise known as the Hazelton-Gold Cobalt, a gold property on Rocher De Boule Mountain, it is expected that some 830,000 or $40,000 worth of mineral will be produced. The operation of the three properties will represent a payroll of 40 men. Mr. Harris will supervise the work on behalf of the owners.

A new organization, in the forming of which W. S. Harris and his brother, Al Harris, were instrumental, is the Northern Prospecting & Development Co. Ltd. The idea of this concern is to take over good looking mines and develop and operate them. Already the company has become interested in some promising free milling gold propositions in the Lillooet district where Al Harris is in charge. The concern has the financial backing of some prominent Vancouver citizens and an office has been opened in the southern city. Under its auspices, an assayer, Jack Boulding, has established an office in New Hazelton.

Mr. Harris will return to New Hazelton tonight following a visit to Anyox. He was to have investigated a prospect on Hastings Arm but the season was not far enough advanced to permit of this being done and he will return later to look it over.

ANGLICAN SPEAKER VICTORIA CITY TEMPLE

Rev. Robert Connell Mentions Broadening Out of Religious Viewpoint

VICTORIA, March 15.—At a banquet at the Victoria City Temple in connection with the school of religious education, one of the speakers was Rev. Robert Connell, formerly rector of St. Saviours', Victoria West. He dealt largely with the change taking place in the modern religious outlook. Formerly Christianity had been a religion of selfishness, but this viewpoint was rapidly changing and Christians were readily recognizing that many men who were not even classified as Christians were responsible for many of the forward movements resulting in the modern spirit of humanitarianism. One of the errors of the past bordering on the ludicrous was an attempt made by parents and religionists alike to impart to children what was supposed to be absolute truth, said Mr. Connell. Misuse had been made of the Bible, too, he claimed. It had been treated too much as a text book and not as a record of a great people.

CANCELLATION OF RESERVE.

FORTY YEARS' MARRIED LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sherman of This City Will Celebrate Anniversary Next Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sherman, Seventh Avenue and Tatlow, well known pioneer citizens, will celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary next Saturday. They were married on March 20, 1886, at Red Ruth, Cornwall, England. Not long after his marriage, Mr. Sherman went to India for three years and, about thirty years ago, he and Mrs. Sherman and their family, which then consisted of two children, came to America. For several years they lived in Colorado, in the Couer d'Alenes and then in Rossland, coming to Prince Rupert sixteen years ago, since which time they have resided here.

Their family consists of six children—Rilla (Mrs. Morrish) who lives in Seattle and William, the local butcher, both of whom were born in Cornwall; Jack and Margaret (Mrs. W. B. Cornish) both of this city and Tom of Vancouver, who were born in Leadville, Colorado, and Leonard of Vancouver, who was born in Rossland. There are seven grandchildren, two here, one in Vancouver and four in Seattle.

EVERY YOUTH SHOULD HAVE MILITARY DRILL

Rev. T. J. Thompson of United Church Says Canada is Suffering From Faddists

OTTAWA, March 15.—Rev. T. J. Thompson, minister of Glebe United Church at a dinner of the 38th Battalion Mess, told the gathering that if he had his way every youth would spend part of his life in military training. Canada was suffering from the utterances of several faddists, and those interested in military work must deal with pacifist forces which were moulding public opinion. He considered the clamor of Miss Agnes Macphail and others constituted a scandal, and should be dealt with as such.

Rev. Mr. Thompson was the first chaplain of the 38th Battalion of the C.E.F. and of the 2nd Canadian Engineers and saw service in Palestine and France during the Great War.

"Little Annie Rooney"

The sweetest of comedy and the tenderest of pathos vie with each other in the story of Little Annie Rooney, a story that plays a tune of life and love on the heart strings of humanity and that has no dull moments nor slack in pace. Happiness and heart aches, hard knocks and softened blows, sweethearts and rivals, alley fights and street games, feature the heart story of this little waif of New York's slums, and never was Mary Pickford more appealing, more laughter-provoking, more tear-compelling, than in this portrayal of the impish, ragamuffin, hoydenish role that made her The World's Sweetheart. Distinguished cast.
