everyone. The play "The Birthday of the Infanta" was a difficult thing exparticularly worthy of comment. The French play "Les Precieuses Ridicules" from Moliere was probably the first thing of its kind given here and was so well performed that even those who were unable to follow the words were able to enjoy the performance. Posibly the words were more deliberately by French people but otherwise the layers seemed to the manner born. As training in speaking the language it probably was the best possible way in which a French class could put in its

Another outstanding feature was the doll dance by Grade 9 Girls, the large number on the small stage making precision and the dancing most graceul, especially in the repeat.

The school singing lacked volume and the contralto parts seemed to be wholly lacking. It is rather a reflection on the musical training of the schools that pupils reaching the high school should not be able to sing a second part in weet and Low" being exceptionally

The varied program was so well executed throughout that criticism perhaps out of place. Principal Peddie and his aides Miss Rushforth, Miss VAUDEVILLE
