POPULATION OF BRITAIN

COUNTRY IS CROWDED MORE THAN ANY OTHER IN WORLD; MANY UNMARRIED WOMEN

LONDON, June 8.—(Canadian Press).—Smaller families but a greater density of population is one of the peculiarities revealed by the general report on the Census of England and Wales just published.

The population, it is stated, numbered rather more than 37½ millions, 649 to each square mile on the average or about an acre per head, a density greater than that of any other country in the world. The adverse effect of the war must be accounted responsible for the unprecedented fall in the birth rate. It compares favorably in this respect, however, with other European belligerents, whose populations generally advanced much slower.

FLOCKING TO TOWNS

The rural population is still flocking to the towns, for the report says: Nearly 80 per cent of the population were enumerated as living in urban areas. Of these practically half were found in comparatively dense aggregates represented by the 46 towns which contain more than 100,000 persons.

In the section dealing with housing attention is called to the fact that notwithstanding the house shortage the total number of rooms available for habitation is greater in relation to the population than it was in 1911.

SEX DISTRIBUTION

In the matter of sex distribution the war has been responsible for a greatly increased disparity in numbers, the surplus of women now exceeding 1,700,000 as compared with fewer than 1,200,000 in 1911. Between the ages of 30 and 35 there are 1,470 unmarried women for every 1,000 unmarried men.

Announcement Made at Rod & Gun Association Meeting Last Night—To Put Boat on Khatada

It was announced at the meeting last night in the city police court of the Prince Rupert Rod & Gun Association that arrangements had been made with the government for the restocking of the depleted waters of Kloyah Lake with Kamloops trout and that the spawn would be placed therein next week.

The necessity of taking care of such facilities was stressed and all influence to this end will be exerted. The association decided to place a rowboat on Khatada Lake for the benefit of anglers.

The association went on record as favoring the strict observance of the regulations governing the size of fish to be taken.

President D. C. Stuart was in the chair and there was a good attendance at the meeting. The newly organized association now boasts a membership roll of seventy.
