INTERIOR ROUTE

It is likely, however, that, before any upon, the route it is to follow to the interior will have to be definitely ascertained. The aerial reconnaissance made last week brings to the fore the possibility of a route back from the Skeena River on the north side which may eliminate much expensive and heavy work in following the rocky banks near the mouth of that stream. Should this now partly discovered route prove practicable, the road would cross Galloway Rapids and then follow northwest to the north arm of Warke Channel via Leverson Lake and skirting the end of Denis Arm, turning in a northwesterly direction from Warke Channel and curving east to the headwaters of the river. This river valley, it is believed. may offer a pass through the mountains east to the Skeena River and C.N.R. Railway whence the road could be built along the Skeena to Terrace. Such route would, of course, eliminate points along the Skeena River west of Exstew including the canneries.

OTTAWA, September 19 .- A definite recognition of Canada's nationhood is implied in her election to one of the non-permanent seats in the council of the League of Nations, says Premier Mackenzie King in a statement handed to the press last night. It in part follows:

"Members of the government are highly gratified by the election of Canada to one of the non-permanent seats in the council of the league of nations. Our election to the league council at this time implies not only definite recognition of our individuality as a nation but I think may justly be re-*garded as an inditcolan of the high es-
