DANGERS OF PROVINCIAL POLICE

While everyone recognized that the establishment of the Pro- in the great walks of life or even his vincial Police system at this point brought about a considerable improvement in the city over the former administration, there are certain dangers connected with placing too much power in a centralized authority and the chief of these is that the police may come to place a young man or woman or even look upon themselves as arbiters of the destinies of the community. many have come from hamlet and coun-They become interpreters of the law and often do not interpret it try fireside just to get lost? There may correctly. Also they become overbearing in the method of administering police affairs. This is particularly so when the local administration happens to fall into the hands of men who are not fitted naturally for the work. Such men become puffed up with a sense if their own importance and do and say things which a bigger man would not do. One of the first things for consideration in carry- to God. The truth is that Canadian business has been healthy and prosperous and is still climbing. In agriculture, in manufactures and in mining the conditions have been such as to warrant sound expansion.

WHEAT IS KING

The great wheat crop of 1925 started Canadian agriculture your daughter?" Why they went away upon a new career of prosperity. It came at a time when world to the city long ago. We have had no prices for grain were satisfactory. As those prices continue reason- word from them. We fear they are dead ably good in the world markets there is no reason why this ad- or what is a thousand times worse, vantage should not continue. Water development has provided cheaper power for the factories, which in turn have been able to employ more workers and turn out more goods. That this prosperity has been national rather than local has been made evident through reductions in income taxes.

Automobile purchases in the United States for the period covered by this survey aggregated about $22,000,000 in value. There were corresponding purchases of motor trucks and parts for replacement. In the same period American exports of cotton goods to Canada aggregated 88,000,000 pounds, as against a total of 75,000,-000 for a corresponding period last year. If estimates made by the Department of Agriculture are correct, Canada is now buying about two-thirds of all her foreign goods in the markets of the United States.

If Canada is a good customer of the United States, so also is the United States a good customer of Canada, concludes the Sun. Last year we bought more goods in Canada than in any other one foreign country, the total running well up toward half a billion of dollars. As good neighbors, living side by side in reciprocal trust and good will, observing the same standards of honesty in trade, think the city is a place in which to the two countries present to the world an object lesson in interna tional relationships.

SERMON LAST NIGHT ON CITY

Rev. J. R. Frizell Urges That Prince Rupert be Clean and Beautiful

Speaking to a large congregation last night on "Third Avenue," Rev. J. R.

There is an old saying that God made the country and man made the city. The country cannot get along without the city; the city cannot get along without the country. Human nature loves the jam, the main thoroughfare, the busy corner. Every city has its main street. It may be named first avenue or second or third, but it is the business street. It by the street where merchants exhibit their goods; the street where people gravitate. How shall I arrange my window so that my goods may appear to the best advantage, the greatest value for the least money?

On the main street you are always seeing new faces; there you meet old friends. Strangers and visitors always enquire for it. If a pocket is picked (it may be a dollar or a thousand) the thief mixes with the crowd and buries himself in the thoroughfare on main

Oh, to read the minds and hear the heartbeats of the men and women in the throng of the great city. Those who began life well and failed. Those who began bad and ended worse. Those who began with nothing and ended with a competence. Walk along the main street, look at the lines on men's faces, the glance of the eye, the nod of the head, the anxious forward movement, and you will see the seething mass of umanity, each striving to arrive at some goal; each carrying some burden of which the man who brushes shoulders ntimate friend knows nothing.

AWAY FROM HOME Now the main street of a city possesses many possibilities. In the first an old may get lost on main street. How be one here tonight. In far-off Eastern Canada, or the old land across the seas, you were accustomed to hear your father or mother pray or read the good book. and as a child you never closed your eyes at night without turning your face ing home? You plunged into the roaring stream of city life and were quickly ngulfed in the murk and mire. You are asked to assist in the Sunday school belong to this club and that, this sodone it not to the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it not to me, and these shall go away into everlast-

SIN OF THE CITY

If I had the imagination of a Dante and the brush of a Murillo, . would paint one picture: "The Angel's Visit to the Country Home." On the two door posts he would see not the stain of blood but the stain of tears. "Father, mother, where is your son? Where is have a good time. But a good time depends not so much upon the place as he person. "You can't run away from trouble or responsibility," said a country mother to her son, "it will follow you." "Drive back nature," said Emerson, 'with a fork and it will come running back." "The parted water reunites behind one's own hand."

We are continually asking visitors and new arrivals if they like our city. Do they like its location; do they like its scenery; do they like its streets, and the people who have labored so hard to make it what it is? For the people make the city and not the city the people. It depends very much upon we, as citizens, whether new arrivals like our city and its environment, and whether or not they remain and make their home amongst us. Paul had a good time in his dungeon. Nero had a bad time in his golden house. Many a man has come to the city to have a good time and has become a slave to Thirdly and lastly, many people think the city is a place to plunder. A place to get rich quick. A place to get two prices for an article which is only worth one. When General Blucher visited the Duke of Wellington in London some time took him about the city. They climbed to the dome of St. Paul's. The ironmagnificent metropolis. Then he looked at Wellington with a wife fire there when he marched on Paris and would have destroyed it for revenge bu for Wellington. "What a city to plunder" he exclaimed. Every city is filled with men and women wno may become good, and good men and women who may become better. God wants to make every city four squared "And the city lieth four square, the length and the breadth and the height of it are equal, a symbol of perfection.
