FRENCH CANADIANS TO FORE

We are told that in a little over twenty years French Canadians existing government in power, a possiwill outnumber English speaking Canadians. Just now they are overtaking them rapidly. They are an industrious people and deserve gangs will scramble to a greater total everything that is coming to them. And the best feature of their than the Tories. rapid increase is that most of the young men remain on the farms instead of following the example of the English speaking youths who make for the cities of Canada and the United States.

Just now, it is said, there is a tendency of French Canadian people who had migrated to the eastern states to return to Canada! and many will migrate to the prairies where there is plenty of land easy to cultivate. Possibly some of them will settle in British Columbia, especially if the Peace district is opened up by a railway with a western outlet.

WAVES OF ENTHUSIASM

Some year or two ago a wave of enthusiasm passed over the gress, check armament, relieve the city and district in regard to the possibility of an outlet from the Peace River which would tend to send the grain to the elevator here. That soon quieted down. As soon as there was a little setback people promptly forgot the western outlet.

Then came the road. People were at fever heat thinking that a road could be built from here to Terrace in a season or two. That seems to have cooled off. What will be the next wave or won't many, Poland, and Hungary. there be one. Are we too dumb to express ourselves on the big questions of the day?

ALICE ARM ONCE MORE

Again there is a good ore strike at Alice Arm. This time it is on a silver showing or more accurately galena-zinc. The Silver shows to whichever of Cord is the property where it has been found. It really looks now as if Alice Arm was due for a comeback that will make the world the preceding contest, irrespective of take notice. This camp has had its ups and down but just now their bletherings against each other. it seems to be decidedly on the upgrade.

SETBACK TO FLYING

The series of losses as a result of attempts at ocean flights has given aviation a decided setback. It no longer gives pleasure to read of an attempted flight for it is expected that the flyer will and probably a small minority, in the probably lose his life. This will change. We shall find airmen now happened, there would be an arrest of devoting their attention to making long distance flying safe. Much the threatened "Hohenzollernisation" of experimental work will have to be done and lives will be lost but the British policy and the British Empire. flyers are bound to succeed in the end.

CATTLE FREE FROM DISEASE

It is satisfactory to know that local cattle are free from disease and that it is now quite safe to use milk raised here or at nearby points along the railway. Knowing that a year ago there had == been tuberculous cattle here, many people were doubtful about using fresh milk but chose instead to confine themselves to the muskeg, what a fortune we could canned variety. Now the conditions are changed. The whole year make. has passed without a new case of tuberculosis developing and in the past the disease is thought to have been brought in from the outside and not developed here. Milk is the best possible food and since it is now found to be of good quality, it can be used without any fear of results.

The King has put his blessing upon business by engaging in the happy recreation of selling flowers at a charity bazaar in Scotland. He has been for many years engaged in the business of selling Royalty to the world with good results so it was to be expected he would be able to succeed with flowers.

Americans are wondering if Coolidge will allow himself to be persuaded to try a third term. That would solve a lot of Republican difficulties.

Jewellers The Store with the Clock.

The elemental necessity before that moiety of the English people which forms the nucleus of the British Empire, if it is to go on playing its proper part in the shaping of human destiny, is to get rid of Mr. Baldwin's government and all its works as speedily as possible. . . . But when the English people turns to the Liberal and Labor poiticians who shoud be translating its manifest will into achieved fact, it finds a crew of active and ingenious second-rate and third-rate men engaged in petty feuds and divided into two bitterly contentious camps, without a shadow of principle to distinguish them.

... One by-election follows another. Each time the government vote shrinks to a smaller proportion of the total: () sometimes a Liberal scrapes in, sometimes a Labor man, and sometimes the Conservative keeps his seat with close upon two-thirds of the poll against im. But in a general election the mutual animosities of these wrangling facions rise to a malice that prefers a government victory to the success of the kindred competitor. It is just as likely that the next election will leave the bility fraught with disaster to the whole world, as that either of these opposition

A POSSIBLE SOLUTION

Now to the great mass of English people these party feuds and bickerings between Liberal and Labor are a matter of entire insignificance. Nobody believes that the Labor party has the courage or the capacity to carry through any extensive socialising operations, and nobody believes that a Liberal government would carry out a policy very different from that of a Labor government.

But either a Liberal or a Labor government would release educational proworld from the fear of adventures against Russia and China sustained more or less furtively by Britain, break the ugly association with Mussolini, show a living regard for free speech and private freedom, and reassure the forces of beace and civilisation in France, Ger-

What is needed is the organisation of a block of voters who will vote primarily against the government and only secandarily for either Liberal or Labor. The sensible thing seems to be to vote in these two political parties secured the largest vote against the Conservatives at
