CLEANUP COW BAY

Almost since Prince Rupert became a city, Cow Bay has been more or less of a sore spot. Once it was filled in by the railway company but the railway commission made them dig it out and reestablish is as a waterway for boats. Later there have been disputes over the bay and city politicians have not been slow to make themselves prominent in connection with its disposal one way or another.

Today Cow Bay remains as a running store. It is the only part of the city that reeks of sewers, and the boneyard there is a disgrace both fall in love with Mary Astor, is to any port. At no other place would it be allowed to exist in its the plot's theme. present condition.

The majority of people do not care what is done with the bay as long as it cleaned up. Today it is filthy.

We have no idea who is responsible for the mess, but somebody is and it is time they took action to make a change. Naturally people turn to the city authorities who are supposed to keep us free from pestilence.

Many tourists visit Cow Bay and their comments on the con- and virile fights ever seen on the screen dition existing there are anything but complimentary. They make and Sills in actual combat before the remarks about the old hulks and about the horrible odors. Prince Rupert people have had these so long that they have become innoculated in both sight and smell. The whole place reeks of degeneration and decay. It is time for a cleanup. The provincial authorities have gone outside their scope to provide a good surfaced road there. Whose turn is the next?

If your hand measures much more than eleven inches it must be a foot.

THINK FOR YOURSELF

A worthy clergyman from eastern Canada addressing a Rotary Club in the west urged the members to do their own thinking and not to be browbeaten into an attitude or opinion by anyone, not even | Tom Eggett, with the aid of two by the church. His idea was all right, but the speaker seemed to spendthrift friends who have a penassume that the members of the club in question, not the one in chant for picking losing horses rapidly. SECOND LARGEST CITY ON PRAIRIES

Charles Woodward, owner of big departmental stores, says From Me," the picture in which this was bughouse. that Edmonton is destined to be the second largest city between To- story is told. It is a Universal-Jewel ronto and Vancouver. This eliminates Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon and any other aspirants for the position along the railways connecting those points. It shows that the trend of development is moving northward and that the cities to the north of the territories being opened up are the ones that are likely to predominate.

On the coast of this country, Vancouver is the big city, made so through the activities of the C.P.R. and through the fact that while being a seaport she has the Island of Vancouver also to draw from.

Prince Rupert has a somewhat similar situation. She has a big fishing river close by, she has a a big group of islands on the seaward side of her and she is the terminus of the big railway in the north and the centre of business for the district. Gradually she will get more business as the country develops and the permanence of the place is established.

Class consciousness is noticed even in auto accients. Some people hate to be run over by a truck while others yelp even when knocked down by a Ford coupe.

In addition to a powerful love theme, . International News.
