MONSTER CELEBRATION OF CANADA'S JUBILEE OPENED BY MINISTER

die for Canada. Canada is our home, there is nothing nearer or dearer than our home, and what could be nearer or dearer than Canada?

We all hope that never again will it be necessary for any of us to die for our country except in peaceful service. Nevertheless, we know not what the morrow may bring forth. Let us as a nation so comport ourselves as to gain the respect and admiration of other nations. As no man can live to himself alone, so no nation can live to itself alone. We must think internationally. The progress that has been acquired in knowledge and information, and the development which has taken place as a consequence thereof, would have astounded the people of a generation ago. We are becoming so accustomed to new discoveries that we are no longer astounded at anything. How important is it, therefore, in a world that is becoming so closely interwoven, that we should establish friendly and understanding relationships between nations.

with us the officers and men of the United States destroyer "Reno," a destroyer coming not as an instrument of destruction, but as a message of peace and goodwill. We appreciate very much the courtesy of the people of the United States in joining with us on the anniversary of our birth as a nation, and we trust that the officers and men of the good ship "Reno" will thoroughly enjoy their stay among us.

"The best service that we can render to other nations, is to properly develop our own. Wholeheartedly and without reservation let us resolve this day, to consecrate our lives to the upbuilding of our country. This does not involve the making of martyrs of ourselves. It does not require any miracle. It is all very simple. Whether we are engaged in affairs of state, scientific research, industrial endeavor or the thousand and one vocations which we are following, all that is necessary for us to do, is for each one of us each day to give of the best that is in him, in his own particular sphere. Let us remember that the material and moral worth of our country, is the sum total of our individual worth. Let us see to it, therefore, that we make a fair contribution to the national welfare in order that Canada may be honored by all nations."

OTHER SPEAKERS

Other speakers at the opening ceremonies, over which A. J. Prudhomme presided, included Mayor Newton, who welcomed the visitors to the city and read Diamond Jubilee messages from the Governor General, the Parliament of Canada, and Premier Mackenzie King. His Worship especially welcomed the officers and men of U.S.S. "Reno."

J. C. Brady M.P., paid tribute to the Fathers of Confederation and referred to the fact that pioneering conditions of sixty years ago were rapidly passing. There still remained, however, the great spirit of Canadianism. The people of Canada, the speaker asserted, were demanding from those at the head of affairs in the country a new policy of development so that the Dominion might take its proper place among the people of the world. The speaker referred to the part being played by the province of British Columbia in the Confederation.

years, a work to be proud of, a work to cherish, a work to complete.

Imported dances have largely displaced the old traditional Irish rince fada. In Cork complaint is made that the Irish dances are treated as a joke, and one member of the Borough Technical Committee desired to make Irish dancing as compulsory as the Irish language, while another suggested that at dances every third dance at least should be Irish.

THE SPIRIT OF CANADA

In political development the experiment of Confederation was a bold one. During 100 years various forms of government had been tried in the four original provinces, but none had fulfilled the aspirations of the people, already conscious of the glorious destiny awaiting them. It is true that in the confederation of the provinces a panacea for all ills, social and political, has not been found, but from north and south, east and west, as a result of union and expansion, the chosen representatives of the people now assemble in one Parliament to carry out the pacific struggle of parties for the greatest good of the greatest number.

Half a century ago the vast distances separating the present provinces of the Dominion seemed to offer a permanent obstacle to that freedom of intercourse so necessary to the development of a national spirit. Today, from sea to sea, in comfort and ease, the whole continent may be traversed in a few days.

In expanse the Dominion of Canada is equal to the area of the continent of Europe; it is diversified in natural resources and climate. Since the confederation of the provinces, however, the Canadian people have demonstrated that under freedom of government it is possible to establish national unity in diversity.

NATIONHOOD

The last 60 years have been years of evolution and of national preparation. From a state of colonial dependence Canada has emerged into nationhood. Economic interests may differ in widely separated communities throughout Canada, but it is the stimulating difference of diversified industrial enterprise. From the beginning of Confederation, there have been differences of race, language, and creed, but with tolerance prevailing they are healthy differences.

Throughout the picturesque pattern of a young Canadian nation, running through warp and woof is the golden thread of allegiance to the Crown, the symbol of united Canada, even as it is the bond of union between all the self-governing communities within the commonwealth of British nations.

This Diamond Jubilee year of Confederation is the occasion of national thanksgiving for the wonderful prosperity of Canada in return for years of self-reliant labor in harmony with nature. It is equally the occasion for celebrating with gratitude the heritage of freedom which has come through the gradual unfolding of government under the British Constitution.
