

With Roast Beef

Hot and juicy, or sliced cold, roast beef needs mustard. A dash of Colman's Mustard, freshly mixed, improves this good meat and renders it wonderfully appetizing.

COLOR OF WATERS

The peculiar color of the water around the Queen Charlotte Islands is exciting the wonder of a great many people. It is thought that it might be the result of volcanic action beneath the sea or possibly of some minute marine life such as the peculiar red coloring that appears around Vancouver Island. Another guess is that it is drift from the Aleutian Islands where there is reported to be a burning island caused by volcanic action. Possibly we shall hear within a few days some more suitable theory.

PACIFIC CLASH POSSIBLE

Sir Arthur Currie is reported to be apprehensive of a clash between the races on the Pacific Ocean. By that he must mean a clash between white and yellow.

We do not share the fears of Sir Arthur, at any rate not for a good many years to come. The difficulty is that Japan is increasing her population rapidly and the white races are tending to diminish the rate of increase. The time will possibly come when Japan is forced to demand land on which to place her overflowing people. That is why it is desirable that Canada shall fill up with a white population. If Canada is not populated and will not populate with whites and Japan must have a place for her people, Canada is the most reasonable country to which to turn. Canada has no means of preventing the Japanese from making demands for she has neither army nor navy. Also there is a tendency on the part of some Canadians to try to gradually attain to a position of independence. With the strength of the British Navy behind us, we are secure against aggression and especially when that force is backed by the power of the United States. Let Canada throw over these ties and she stands alone, unable to defend herself against aggression.

Perhaps it is not fair to suggest that Japan would be an aggressor. However, it must be noted that the Japanese have only recently awakened and developed into a first class nation. She is in somewhat of the position held at one time by Great Britain, forceful, aggressive and virile. Canada is peacefully inclined and the tendency of the education of the day is toward peace. This means that the younger generation will grow up different from the older and passably less able to defend themselves.

What is needed in Canada then in order to make ourselves secure is to fill up the coveted lands with a white population, so that no envious eyes may be cast this way. With that incentive to trouble out of the way, there will be less cause to fear trouble. Also Canada will be better able to defend herself and to prevent aggression by any power for she will have the population.

AGE OF PEACE NOT YET

It is useless to think that we have come into an age of peace. The Union of Soviet Republics in Russia does not preach peace. It is much more inclined to prepare for war. But the envoys of the Russian republics are inclined to try to lull the nations to sleep so that when the day comes they may be in a better position to overrun the world. There is probably more to fear from Russia than from either of the yellow races. In any event what Canada needs is white population. Given a thriving and wealthy nation you have a white force for good or for evil and the influence of Canada it is to be hoped will be always for good.

MILITARISM OBJECTIONABLE

Militarism is always objectionable. Nobody likes war. Nobody likes the military methods which teach people how to kill each other and glorify killing as one of the noble professions.

Yet we have not reached the millennium, and indeed are very far from it. We have not reached an age when moral power is greater than physical force. It was a huge effort to check the aggression of Germany and further efforts may be necessary to check the aggression of other great nations. It is part of the work of a democracy to prepare for defence. In France every man has to be ready to take part in the defence of the state. The same is true of other countries and in Canada if an invader were to come it would be the duty of every man to turn out and take part in her defence. Very few people but would defend their homes against a marauder and what is true of the home is true of the nation. Defence is necessary as long as people of the world still are ready to use military power to enforce their demands.

LABOR LEADERS MAKE REPORT

Tell of Work of Year of Officials of Canadian Congress Headed by Tom Moore

EDMONTON, Aug. 26.—In giving an account of its stewardship for the year since the last Labor congress met in Montreal, the executive council, which is composed of President Tom Moore, Vice-presidents J. T. Foster, James Simpson, R. J. Tallon and Secretary-Treasurer P. M. Draper, went on to say:

The past year has been one of marked progress. The spirit of unity so noticeable among the delegates attending the Montreal convention has permeated the whole of our membership during the entire year, manifesting itself in that close co-operation of effort so essential to success in any movement. The splendid assistance rendered your executive in their legislative efforts by affiliated organizations is reflected in the securing of the enactment of several measures long sought by organized labor.

ORGANIZING CAMPAIGNS

Organizing work has been carried steadily forward during the year, most affiliated international unions maintaining Canadian representative, constantly in the field, whose efforts have been supplemented by the special organizing campaigns carried on in many centres by the trades and labor councils and local unions. These activities have made possible the securing of numerous upward revisions of wages and betterments in working conditions, especially for those workers employed in the better organized trades and callings, and also brought about a more general recognition by employers of the policy of collective bargaining.

Though industrial activities have continued to expand, providing employment for larger number of workers than for the past several years, there has been a constant surplus of available labor, attributable largely to the unwarranted influx of immigrants to the industrial centres throughout the dominion, and the fact that these beneficial changes have been obtained notwithstanding this continued prevalence of unemployment is a notable tribute to the effectiveness of proper trade union organizations.

SOLIDARITY IS UNIMPAIRED

By the formation, during the early part of this year, of the "All Canadian Congress of Labor," a number of those organizations which have sought to disrupt and divide our movement, during the past several years, have now combined their efforts with the same objects in view. Your executive has countered their activities by making known at every opportunity their true purposes, exposing the fallacy of their arguments and the futility of their policies. It is pleasing, therefore, to report that, warned by past experiences, our membership has refused to give any aid or support to this new rival organization, and that the vitality and solidarity of our movement remains unimpaired. The matters dealt with by your executive have been no less numerous or varied than in other years. Consideration of these, along with the resolutions submitted by affiliated local unions, trade councils, and others, should lead to a common understanding and agreement on future policies, a renewal of confidence in the principles of the organizations to which we belong and a strong determination to assist in every possible way the building up and the strengthening of the Trades and Labor Congress.

LEGISLATION REQUESTED

Going into details, the executive council's report reviewed the legislative program of 1927 which it had pressed upon the dominion government for enactment, which desired legislation included, for instance, among many other things, the eight hour day amendments to the British North America Act, Unemployment and Unemployment Insurance, Old Age Pensions, Senate Reform, peaceful picketing, control of oriental labor, restrictions of immigration.

Continuing, the report states that, although the American Federation of Labor has not found it possible to add to its full time organizing staff in Canada during the past year, yet considerable assistance has been rendered by its officers, who have co-operated closely with your executive in directing the attention of the international unions having membership in Canada to opportunities which have occurred from time to time to build up their membership in this country. Through these efforts still another international union has been added to the 57 international unions who affiliate their entire Canadian membership to the Congress, and pay per capita tax on the same direct from their headquarters. In view of the constant attempts being made to disrupt and discredit international trades unionism in Canada, your executive has continued its efforts to obtain direct affiliation from headquarters of a number of other organizations having membership in Canada.

COMPENSATION LAWS

Another section of the executive's report deals with the important subject of Workmen's Compensation laws. At the last convention it was decided that a special committee should review the entire situation regarding the Ontario Workmen's Compensation act, and bring in such amendments to the same as seemed to it advisable. The report of this committee, states the executive, has been printed and is to be submitted to the congress.

In concluding its report, the executive says: "Our efforts have been devoted at all times to protect the interests of those who constitute our membership, at the same time paying due regard to the interests of the community as a whole. Though this task has not always been a light one it has been made easier and more pleasant by the harmony existing throughout our movement, in the past year, and the splendid and generous co-operation given at all times by those who constitute the same. The result of this unity of effort is reflected in the increase in membership and the legislative results obtained during the year.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

J. H. Glass, provincial grand master of the Oddfellows' Lodge, passed through the city aboard the Princess Alice this morning on his way to Dawson. He will return to Prince Rupert about the middle of September and spend several days here.

The suspension bridge across the Hagwilget Canyon at New Hazelton, which was built many years ago by the Indians and was a marvel of the engineering world, has collapsed according to word received in the city.

Among visitors in Prince Rupert yesterday was K. Veregin who came over from the Queen Charlotte Islands. He is a cousin of Peter Veregin, king of the Donkeybobs in Canada.
