Neglected Eyes

NEGLECT is doubtless the cause of most of the ills that afflict humanity. This is so self evident that it seems hardly necessary to tell you. If your eyes are giving trouble, have them attended to—and at once.

OF ALL absurdities in the kingdom of foolishness, surely the loss of eyesight through neglect is the most inexcusable. DON'T lose health and efficiency through neglect. Come and see!

COMEDY HAS PLENTY SNAP AND SPARKLE

"The Waning Sex," starring Norma Shearer, comes to the Westholme Theatre tonight only.

It is a comedy with a snap and sparkle, an exhilarating, zesty tempo, and it even has plot, not with an artificial heaviness, but said to be well-balanced and interesting.

Norma Shearer has the role of a successful woman lawyer, while Conrad Nagel, her leading man, is cast as the rising young district attorney, who is in love with her. She is really in love with him but she is a modern-day woman whose independence is as precious to her as a man's is to him, and she is a bit wary of matrimonial gestures.

She agrees to marry the district attorney if he beats her in a case in which they are opposed in court. He loses, and then the "other girl" enters the case.

The "other girl," played by Mary McAllister, happens to be a shrewd little schemer, who is determined to snare him as a husband, and her wiles are not easily discounted, when they comprise a cozy cottage, a wonderful meal, cushioned couches, shaded lamps, etc.

It looks like the young D.A. has been well trapped when we find him at the cottage of the other girl in most unconventional garb. But the quick wit and ready action of the heroine save the day.

Side by side with the adult romance of the film marches the puppy love of the young sister and brother of the principals.

NERO'S CRUELITIES NOW FILM THRILLER

Martyrdom of Christians in Lion Pit Vividly Shown in "Quo Vadis"

The games of the Roman arena, which for 1900 years have made the reign of Nero a synonym for all that is cruel, are to be reincarnated for modern eyes in "Quo Vadis," which comes to the Westholme Theatre Tuesday night.

There will be seen the Emperor's favorite amphitheatre rising tier on tier and filled to overflowing with gaily clad merry-makers. There is music in the air, and every face shows eager anticipation of the program which a cruel tyrant has prepared for the amusement of his people.

After a wild football celebration, Tom Sterling is "framed" into marrying Carmen Mendoza, a chorus girl in the picture "Kid Boots," starring Eddie Cantor, which comes to the Westholme Theatre Thursday night. While waiting for the final decree to his interlocutory divorce, he unexpectedly inherits three million dollars. Carmen and her crooked lawyer decide to get some of the money.

Tom rescues Kid Boots, a tailor's helper from the clutches of an irate customer. In order to thank him, the kid follows Sterling to his apartment. There, Tom finds his ex-wife establishing herself as though she hadn't even heard of the separation. Carmen's counsel breaks in to secure evidence of the boy's condonation of the marriage.

Things look bad for Sterling when the Kid falls out of a closet with ample proof of Tom's innocence. His lawyer, fearing that Carmen will make another attempt, advises him to keep the Kid near. Under an assumed name, Sterling becomes the golf professional at a fashionable hotel. Kid Boots is made caddy-master.

The Kid "falls" for Jane Martin, a beautiful little swimming instructor, but discovers a rival in the same "husky" Tom rescued him from. Incidentally, the man is employed under the same roof. Sterling becomes interested in Polly Pendleton, the hotel manager's little daughter. Carmen and her legal guide arrive, having "tracked" their man to his lair.

Endeavoring to protect Tom, the Kid flirts with Carmen, this causing his own sweetie to turn him down. Taking Sterling's room for the night he makes arrangements to meet him in court next morning with evidence of the conspiracy. But—Carmen turns the tables and the Kid finds himself miles from his destination.

Jane is the only witness who can save his friend. He persuades her to get on the band-wagon and they set off, using horses, mules, airplanes and autos in their hurried trip to the courthouse. They arrive in time to clear Tom of all blame.

Given his final decree, Sterling is free to marry Polly while Jane, realizing she has been at fault, capitulates to the Kid.

STORY OF LIMEHOUSE IN WEEK-END PICTURE
Colleen is London Wait in "Twinkletoes" Coming to Westholme Theatre at Week-end

Limehouse, where the sloe-eyed Malay mingles with the oily Hindoo, where furtive Chinamen rub elbows with the backwash of London's human undertows, where life and love are seen in the raw, will be seen on the Westholme Theatre screen at the week-end in the picture "Twinkletoes."

With this eerie, colorful tale comes Colleen Moore, in golden curls and ballet shoes.

The theme with the struggles of a brave little waif of the shadowy streets of Limehouse, who is headlined as a dancer at the local music hall. She falls in love with the waterfront's pugilist, who is to be married to a slovenly wench, seeking to ruin "Twink" and her dad.

There is a wealth of action packed in the plot; it would be a shame to spoil the suspense by divulging it. To those who have read Thomas Burke's story, it might be added aside that the theme is followed faithfully, with an even more convincing conclusion.

Kenneth Harlan as the boxer, Gladys Brockwell as Cissie, his wife, "Tully" Marshall as "Old Man Minasi," Lucian Littlefield as "Hank," the appealing old drunk, and Warner Oland as the sinister theatre-manager, are featured in the supporting cast. Any one of them might well have been the star for the finish of their characterization.

Julianne Johnston and 120 ballet dancers add just the needed touch of phantasy in a dream sequence, while the motley mob of the quayside crowds were evidently picked with considerable care. All are exceptionally interesting "types."

The Well-Managed Home

THE manager of a household is the purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. In order to do a good job she must know what, when and where to buy. She must study goods and the concerns which make goods and have them to sell. She must put her home on a business basis and run it on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the only basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read the advertisements.

Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise. They reveal improvements and inventions to make your home life easier, more comfortable and more convenient. They give you information about a thousand and one things that are useful.

Every manager of a household---every member of the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare---should make a habit of reading the ads.

Read the advertisements in order to buy wisely

GOT HER FEET WET CAUGHT BAD COLD

Mrs. Ernest Hall, Cardinal, Ont., writes:—"Last winter I got my feet wet and I caught a terrible cold. I took different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good and I seemed to be getting worse all the time.

One day I was reading about what your medicine had done for others, so I thought I would get a bottle. After I had taken a few doses I found it was helping me, so I took a few more and was completely restored to health. I cannot praise too highly, as I believe that if it were not for it I would be an invalid today.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup
