EVERY WOMAN SHOULD READ

HOW "FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE HER NEW LIFE

MRS. J. F. RUTKOWSKA.

"For several years I suffered with severe constipation and was a nervous wreck. I had great pain in my limbs, and such terrible headaches I thought I would go crazy. I had no appetite, could scarcely eat anything without stomach distress. After reading about 'Fruit-a-tives' I decided to try them. Before I had taken three boxes, I was entirely well. I sincerely think 'Fruit-a-tives' saved my life." —Mrs. J. F. Rutkowska, Tolstoi, Manitoba.

Indigestion, biliousness, headaches, nervousness, pains in the back and limbs are largely caused by allowing poisons to accumulate in the body. "Fruit-a-tives" is nature's remedy, made from intensified fresh fruit juices combined with tonics. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulates the bowels, liver and kidneys to normal action and brings about a condition of delightful health. Buy a box of "Fruit-a-tives", today. Enjoy life again. 25c and 50c, everywhere. 543

The German Socialist party and the former Kaiser are at daggers drawn on the question of Wilhelm's return to the Fatherland. The Socialists have somewhat the advantage, as they are on the ground the ex-war lord seeks to invade.

Some people are feeble-minded to begin with, and others attempt to follow Central American politics.

It is little wonder that political parties split occasionally. They try to straddle every question that comes up.

WAS LEAP YEAR FOR ENGLAND'S BELOVED QUEEN

NEW BOOK ON HISTORIC LOVER REVEALS THAT VICTORIA COURTED PRINCE CONSORT—CARLYLE MARRIAGE WAS UNHAPPY

A new view of Queen Victoria is revealed by the study which appears in "Historic Lovers" written by the late W. L. George of England.

The courtship of Her Majesty and the Prince Consort was, as dictated by the Queen's superior rank, mainly on her side.

Her diaries relate that, being Queen, she could not accept addresses, but must pay them. She told the Prince that it will make her too happy if he would consent to marry her.

The Queen then added that they embraced, and that he was "so kind, so affectionate." These words, "kind," affectionate," were slightly pathetic.

At first, the couple made a bad pair, in spite of their enforced conjugal example in the eyes of the world. The Queen liked to dance until morning, she enjoyed Court functions, she liked London. Prince Albert preferred to go to bed early, to surround himself with men of science.

Here is a new light on the picture of ideal domesticity and married bliss which has been held up to the world for fifty years!

But in the end the Queen fell completely under the sway of her husband, and resigned herself entirely to his wishes and ways of life.

CARLYLE'S ROMANCE

Another wedded pair, Thomas and Jane Carlyle, were surely the most ill-assorted couple among the great figures of the Victoria age. The dour, Calvinistic Scot married a woman who would have been happy with a common composer, an actor, with any man of mercurial spirit—but she was captured and carried off by a philosophic mentality that imprisoned her in the loneliness of a Scottish home, ruined her health, and finally brought her to London to live a cat-and-dog life in which he formed intellectual friendships in which she had no share. Yet after her death he repented.

"He comes here lonesome and alone," said the grave-digger, who had dug Jane Carlyle's grave. "The last time he was here I got a sight of him, and he was bowed down under his white hairs, and he took his way up by that ruined wall of the old cathedral, and then he kneeled down and stayed on his knees at the grave. Then he bent over, and I saw him kiss the ground—aye, he kissed it again and again."

But not all his remorse could bring back to the lonely old man the love he had killed."

CHICKEN.

The minister and his bride were preparing to eat a bite at a luncheonette. They were busily engaged with the bill of fare when the waitress, who was a much calcimined and peroxided young miss, came up to take their order. Suddenly the young minister looked up from the bill of fare, smiled sweetly at the waitress, and said: "How is the chicken today?"

"Pretty good kid!" she retorted "How are you?"—Exchange.
