THE CROSS Sermonette by Rev. J. R. Frizell, B.A., LL.B. Prince Rupert, B.C.

"Crucify him, Crucify him." (St. John 19, 6.)

The howl of a heartless mob! They are clamoring for the blood of their King. During the first year of his public appearance, all had gone well. He had ministered to their physical ills and, of course, had not yet encountered much oppposition. But when he assailed hypocrisy and ritualistic worship, immediately he brought himself into conflict with the rulers of the Synagogue. Sin is always pitiless and slays men and women, if possible, for their moral convictions. "Crucify him, crucify him"the Roman form of capital punishment. Some victims were tied to the crosses and left to die of starvation and exhaustion in the blaze of the Eastern sun. Others were nailed and the lacerated wounds added to the pangs of the $1 00 monthal tentum and thing

IRREGULARITY OF JAP EARTHQUAKES.

The first reaction to Japan's latest earthquake disaster was one of deepest sympathy, followed by offers of relief in the form of money, food and clothing. But beyond the desire to extend prompt and generous material aid, these tragedies provoke within Americans of Christ. The latest catastrophe brings home again to the Japs the meaningless of the long periods of immunity.

Between the two earthquakes are certain terrible similarities. Though centreing 250 miles apart, each took its toll in a densely populated area. That of 1923 obliterated the port of Yokohama and caused tremendous property damage and loss of life in Tokio, lying a short distance inland. The latest tremors centered near the port of Kobe and the nearby, but inland, industrial city of Osaka.

The cities of Kobe and Osaka escaped unscathed from the death of one who set himself against disaster of 1923, while Yokohama and Tokio went down in burning the bigotry and falsity of the day. "And ruins. Now Yokohama and Tokio escape and the wrath of nature is when the blood of thy martyr Stephen Avenue to the top floor of the city vented on Kobe and Osaka. So it will seem to this stricken people was being shed," said Paul. "I also was hall. that nowhere in their country is there safety from a destruction standing by, and consenting unto his which may come without a breath of notice at any moment of the day or night.
