WORLD PEACE BY EDUCATION AIM MEETING

Great Object of Educationists' Gathering at Toronto is World Brotherhood

TORONTO, July 25.—(By Canadian Press).—A great gathering from a professional standpoint is the second biennial conference of the World Federation of Education Associations, which will bring to Toronto about 6,000 educationists from all over the world between August 7 and 12. But the most important aspect of the huge conference is its unofficial aim—the furtherance of world peace through education. With practically every nation in the world represented, the importance of the meeting in the quest for universal peace is obvious.

A comprehensive program of subjects for discussion has been prepared, but educationists of all the nations that will be represented are looking beyond the merely professional aspects of the conference to the influence of education on the affairs of the world.

"I look on this federation as a means of promoting world peace through education," says F. W. Goldstone, general secretary of the British National Union of Teachers, "and the fact that the idea had its birth in the United States is, I think, particularly significant when it is remembered that the United States is not a member of the League of Nations."

The program for the conference includes discussions on the training of teachers, care of the young, illiteracy, and the relationships of education to international peace in various aspects. Every phase of education will be discussed, including pre-school, elementary, secondary, higher, adolescent and adult education.

"World brotherhood through education" is, in fact, the keynote of the convention in the words of Augustus O.

Repeat Orders

The best evidence of satisfactory service is the number of companies who, after using one Fairbanks-Morse Diesel Engine, have sent us repeat orders.

Fairbanks-Morse Diesel Engines are noted for their reliability, economy and long life. Two stroke simplicity with airless injection of fuel. No valves to grind; no complicated valve rockers to keep in adjustment. Uses low grades of fuel oil. Excellent maneuvering qualities on light loads and slow speeds.

Fairbanks-Morse Diesel Engines are made in the following sizes:—
20 h.p.—2 cyl. 180 h.p.—6 cyl.

OPERATION OF EIGHT HOURS DAY SUCCESS

Board Makes Second Annual Report on Operations in British Columbia

MANY WORKERS AFFECTED

Act is Flexible But Few Complaints Have Been Regard to Its Application

In reviewing the second year of the operation of the Hours of Work Act in the Province of British Columbia, the Board administering the Act, which consists of J. D. McNiven, chairman, T. F. Paterson and F. V. Foster, states that the Act has been of distinct benefit to many thousands of workers whose hours of labor it has materially reduced, and that it has been, generally speaking, very loyally observed by those in control of industrial operations throughout the Province.

The report of the Board, which has been presented to the Hon. A. M. Manson, minister of labor, recalls how, at the time of the passing of the act, it was pointed out that occupations where workers were able to build up strong organizations of their own were not likely to be affected greatly by its provisions, as they had, for the most part, secured an eight hours' working day by their own efforts. In some of the leading industries, however, the case was different, and long working hours were extremely prevalent with large bodies of unorganized workers. It is to these latter, in particular, that the act has been found applicable, and its administration during the past two years has had the effect of reducing their hours of labor in a very important degree.

COMPLAINTS FEW

Complaints of non-observance of the Act have reached the Board from time to time, although, taking into account the diversified nature of our industries, and the very wide area over which they are distributed, it may fairly be said that such complaints were far less frequent than might have been expected. Investigation into their causes has been made, either by members of the board personally or by the staff of the department of labor, and where grounds of complaint were found to exist there has been little difficulty in having matters put right. The amount of friction or misunderstanding in the working of the act has, in fact, been singularly small.

FLEXIBILITY

A rigid enforcement of an eight-hours working day, for all workers in all industries at all times, was clearly not contemplated by the Legislature, which expressly permitted a large amount of flexibility in bringing the principle of the legal limitation of working hours into consonance with the changing needs of industry. The Act itself contained qualifying clauses which the Board of Adjustment to frame such exemptions to the operation of the Act, both permanent and temporary, as might be found necessary. Permanent exemptions have been provided for in regulations issued by the board, which have a more or less general application in the industries to which they relate. Temporary exemptions are those allowed by the Board from time to time, to meet the requirements of individual employers in periods of unusual stress or emergency.

During the year 1926 there have been 176 of these temporary exemptions granted, the majority having been in the interest of those engaged in one branch or another of the lumbering industry.

Where the grounds upon which applications for exemptions were made appeared to be unreasonable or insufficient, such applications have not been acceded to. During the past year forty-two applications were refused by the Board.

SHORTENED WORKDAY

That the Act has resulted in a considerable shortening of the working day for those who formerly used to be employed for an excessive number of hours, appears to admit of doubt. Abundant proof of this is to be found in the details as to working hours which were collected by the Department of Labor from 4,521 employers in the past year. This has permitted of a comparison being made between 1924, the year before the Act became operative, and last year. In nineteen of the twenty-five industrial groups there is a lowering of the average weekly working period, and those groups not so affected either contain a considerable number of workers who do not come under the provisions of the Act, or else their normal working hours, both before and since the passing of the Act, have been fewer than forty-eight a N.B.—Practically all British Columbia Mineral Properties upon which development work has been done are described in some one of the Annual Reports of the Minister of Mines. Those considering mining investments should refer to such reports. They are available without charge on application to the Department of Mines, Victoria, B.C. Reports of the Geological Survey of Canada, Which Building, Vancouver, are recommended as valuable sources of information. Reports covering of the Six Mineral Survey Districts are published separately, and are available on application.

LUMBER INDUSTRY

It is in the lumbering group of industries, employing altogether something like 40,000 persons, that the effect of the Hours of Work Act has chiefly been felt. In the logging branch the average hours have been reduced 2.08 per week. Sawmills have witnessed an average reduction of 4.82 hours a week, shingle mills 7.12 hours, planing mills 5.10 hours, logging railways 1.95 hours, box factories, sash and door plants, etc., 2.62 hours. Mixed plants 4.98 hours, and pulp and paper mills 5.01 hours. In the lumbering group there are still some sections with an average slightly over forty-eight hours, which is explained by the permanent and temporary exemptions already referred to, but the above figures show that, for the general body of workers, the Act has meant a real reduction in the hours of labor.

Apart from the lumbering industry there is an average reduction of 2.15 hours weekly in the contracting group, and 4.41 hours in the allied group of Builders' Materials. The other changes are less important, though, in reference to an increase of 3.49 hours weekly in Oil Refining group, it should be noted that this group includes the new fish reduction plants, where the operations are in the nature of things both seasonal and intermittent, and in which it would not be possible to insist upon a strict interpretation of the Act.

SADDLE MINE HASTINGS ARM

Property Being Developed by Silver Crest Mines Ltd. and Showing Good

The shaft being sunk on the Saddle property at Hastings Arm continues in good ore states P. E. Peterson who is in charge of operations says the Alice Arm Herald.

At the point where the shaft was commenced, the ore on the surface was 18 inches wide. The shaft is now down 20 feet, and the vein varies in width from 12 to 18 inches the entire distance.

The character of the ore is a high grade galena carrying silver, gold and copper values. The quartz on both walls also carry good values.

The ore vein has been exposed on the surface for a distance of 300 feet, and varies from 3 to 6 feet wide. Both walls are well defined and numerous branch veins join the main vein.

The high grade, which is on the hanging wall side of the vein varies in width from 3 feet to a few inches, the average width of what has been exposed is about 14 inches. It presents every indication of going to a great depth, and development work will be prosecuted with all possible speed. The vein is on the contact of the granite and greenstone, with greenstone forming the hanging wall, and in places granite forming the footwall.

The Saddle property is at an elevation of 4,000 feet, right above Hastings Arm, and a tramline can be constructed to tidewater, when ore shipments commence at a small cost. It is ideally located for cheap mining and shipping of ore.

The Saddle is being developed by the Silver Crest Mines Ltd. of Vancouver, who have an option on it. They also have an option on the Silver Crest Group at Stewart which joins the Big Missouri on the north.

Mr. Peterson who is in charge of operations at both properties, is well acquainted with the north. He was in charge of the pilot concentrating mill at Anyox three years and during that time the successful solution of treating the Hidden Creek ores was worked out, which resulted in the construction of the present huge mill. He later held the position of superintendent at the Big Missouri, and was successful in locating the ore bodies that placed the company in such a favorable position. Before coming to British Columbia eleven years ago, Mr. Peterson held responsible positions with the Anaconda Copper Co. the W. A. Clarke interests, and the Butte and Superior Mining Co.
