Neglected Eyes

NEGLECT is doubtless the cause of most of the ills that afflict humanity. This is so self evident that it seems hardly necessary to tell you. If your eyes are giving trouble, have them attended to—and at once.

OF ALL absurdities in the kingdom of foolishness, surely the loss of eyesight through neglect is the most inexcusable.

DON'T lose health and efficiency through neglect. Come and see!

PROGRESS IN BRITISH ARMY

TO MECHANIZE CAVALRY AND MEDIUM ARTILLERY — MORE MACHINE GUNS FOR FOOT FORCES

LONDON, April 4.—(Canadian Press).—A reduction of almost a million pounds sterling was effected in the Army Estimates now before Parliament, but this was more than offset by expenses necessary for the establishment of the Shanghai Defence Force. The estimates stand at a total of £41,565,000. This compares with £58,000,000 for the Navy and more than £15,000,000 for the Air Force, a rough total of £115,000,000 for the British land, sea and air forces.

One of the most interesting features of a memorandum accompanying the estimates, is that of the decrease in numbers of recruits during 1926. Experience confirmed the view that the better the state of employment the better the intake of recruits. Fifty-eight per cent of the would-be soldiers were rejected because they failed to come up to the high standards required. This fact indicates that the army is now composed of really picked men. The number of men serving exclusive of those in India, in the coming year will be 166,500, an increase of 7,100. The strength of the Territorial Army exclusive of permanent staff, is 6,760 officers and 139,762 other ranks, a slight increase during the year.

The memorandum says that during the past year steady progrese has been made in the experimental work of mechanization and arrangements have been made to assemble in the Salisbury Plain area an Experimental Mechanical Force, composed of entirely mechanized units of Artillery, Engineers, Signals, Infantry and the Tank Corps, whose primary function will be to study the tactical employment and the organization of a highly mobile force of this nature. It is hoped that by the end of the year considerable progress will have been made.

MECHANIZE ARTILLERY

It has already been decided to mechanize all Regular Medium Artillery, and a suitable type of dragon has been evolved. At present one Medium Brigade is mechanized and it is proposed to provide, during the coming year, the dragons required to equip a second brigade. With regard to Field Artillery, two brigades have been experimentally equipped with mechanical vehicles of various kinds, but before a type of tractor is finally adopted, further trial and experiment will be necessary. For the present, the mechanization of a proportion only of the Field Artillery is contemplated.

A start is being made with the mechanization of the Cavalry by providing six regiments with cross-country mechanical vehicles, in place of horsed vehicles, for normal first line transport work and for the carriage of a proportion of their machine guns and crews. At the same time endeavor is being made to evolve a reliable cross-country armored car, with a view to the possible introduction of such a vehicle, if and when it is obtained, into the ranks of the Cavalry.

FURTHER EXPERIMENTS

Further experiments are to be carried out in the mechanization of the first line transport of infantry and of signal units.

To meet the requirements of modern war it is felt that the fire-power of the Cavalry and Infantry ought to be increased. It has, therefore, been decided to raise the number of machine guns allowed in war for a Cavalry regiment and an Infantry battalion from eight to 12. For the same reason the question of adopting a self-loading rifle, if a satisfactory weapon of this tpye can be obtained, or, alternatively, of introducing a more serviceable light automatic to replace the Lewis and Hotchkiss guns with which the Cavalry and Infantry are now equipped is receiving consideration.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

APRIL 4, 1917.

The Marquis of Queensbury, in an interview at Winnipeg, said that the mineral wealth of northwestern British Columbia was sufficient to pay the war debt of the Dominion and that of Great Britain as well.

Sergeant Robert McIntosh was given a hearty welcome when he stepped ashore this morning from the Vancouver boat after service at the front.

It is reported in the city that the G.T.P. has purchased a vessel in Oregon for use in the Prince Rupert-Alaska trade.

C. L. Panton, an Edmonton business man, says that Prince Rupert will benefit greatly by trade with the Peace River country. He also says that a large amount of Oriental trade will flow through this port.

W. M. Law arrived in the city today on his way to Alice Arm where he has business interests.

The tug Hope, Captain John Harrison, of the Beaver Inlet cannery arrived in port yesterday to have a new boiler installed.

In The Letter Box

WHY RUPERT DOESN'T GROW.

Editor, Daily News.

Often there are mentioned in the public press instances of Prince Rupert being located in advantage through nearness to the Orient. So far, so good, but it doesn't require a bright scholar to comprehend that a leading stimulant to any noticeable growth of a city is the cheapness of its transportation.

I wish to mention a few facts for your readers to ponder over. Then they will get a vision similar to the one that I have obtained as to why greater or lesser amounts of commodities, that are shipped from our neighboring eastern provinces are being shipped to the coast, via Vancouver instead of the direct route through Prince Rupert and over a line of which one can hear frequent murmerings of a delinquent ailment.

A few weeks have now passed since I received a shipment of sixteen live breeding muskrats from a station, located a little east of Edmonton, Alta. I instructed the shipper, if possible, to ship via Prince Rupert thus saving time and a shorter sea voyage.

For obvious reasons and over a longer route, they were shipped by double first class express via Vancouver and this principally on the large saving on the transportation charges, from that of the other above mentioned route.

Having received instructions from the shipper to return the animal crates, having made inquiries as to the cheapest route to return them, I was advised from reliable sources that the cheapest would be by freight, via Prince Rupert.

Following the arrival of the crates at Prince Rupert, I received notice from the agent there that the crates would have to be prepaid and to remit $27.05 to cover as follows: Masset to Prince Rupert $1.65; Prince Rupert to Uneas station, $25.40; the latter station is but a short distance east of Edmonton.

The three crates containing the live rats and their feed were billed as weighting 150 pounds. These arrived by double express first class charges and the total express bill received was several dollars less coming via Vancouver than what the C.N.R. are charging by freight on the crates being returned via Prince Rupert.

I think this is preposterous. It is not an enticing advertisement for prospective shippers to patronize the line.

A. D. HALLETT.

The Well-Managed Home

THE manager of a household is the purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. In order to do a good job she must know what, when and where to buy. She must study goods and the concerns which make goods and have them to sell. She must put her home on a business basis and run it on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the only basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read the advertisements.

Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise. They reveal improvements and inventions to make your home life easier, more comfortable and more convenient. They give you information about a thousand and one things that are useful.

Every manager of a household---every member of the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare---should make a habit of reading the ads.

Read the advertisements in order to buy wisely

MIXED MARRIAGES ARE DEPLORED BY CATHOLIC CHURCH

TORONTO, April 4.—(Canadian Press)—That mixed marriages are deplored by the Roman Catholic Church and are a fruitful source of leakage from the household of the faith was the declaration of Rev. Dr. O'Reilley preaching in St. Michael's Cathedral on "Mixed Marriages." "Good old Catholic names mean nothing today," he declared, "solely through the loss to the church of the children of the mixed union."

In an investigation made recently by an American Archbishop of 450 families of mixed marriages, ten per cent. only have remained steadfast to the Catholic church. "There is no reason in the world," he emphasized "why Catholic young men and women should not seek mates in their own religion in marriage. It is only the very rare exception where a mixed marriage has turned out happy," he declared.

Her Little Boy Caught Cold While Out Playing

Mrs. F. Cade, Elmwood, Man., writes:—"My little boy caught cold while out playing in the snow. He coughed incessantly all that night and the next day, and nothing I gave him seemed to relieve him. When my husband came home he brought a bottle of with him. After the second dose my boy was greatly relieved and after the third dose he went to sleep and slept the whole night through without any coughing. I am never without it in the house, and whenever any of the children get the slightest cold it's the first thing I give them."
