Chambers of Commerce Hold Annual Convention

Special to The Daily News

VANCOUVER — A prominent Prince Rupert lawyer, J. T. Harvey, today was elected second vice-president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

A director during the past year, Mr. Harvey was unable to attend sessions of the first annual meeting here yesterday and today, because of pressure of business.

Art Nickerson of Prince Rupert, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central B.C., and Frank Dockrill of Telkwa, also directors of the B.C. Chamber, represented northern B.C. at the convention.

Names of other officers elected for the ensuing year were not available at press time.

In an address to delegates, Dr. C. H. Wright of Trail said British Columbia's economy is heading into a critical period of transition.

"The situation is fraught with dangers from the basic and secondary industries," he told the 90 delegates from 29 cities throughout the province.

DIFFICULT YEAR

Dr. Wright said that 1952 had been a difficult year for basic industry, especially coal, lumber and fishing and, "despite reductions in production of the basic industry, retail sales this year are up about eight per cent."

The Highway Committee said reports of the provincial public works department do not at present show the exact picture of highway expenditures but claimed that government expenditures going toward highway construction "is steadily increasing."

A new education film telling how Canada's business system operates was viewed by delegates. The film illustrated roles played by labor, management, capital, profits and the consumer in the operation of the business system.

The Chamber plans to make the film available for showing in schools across Canada, and to Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

Meeting in Hotel Georgia, delegates also determined policy for the year ahead regarding such subjects as the single alternative vote, the motor vehicle responsibility act, decentralization of hospitals and rent control.

Fire Destroys Cold Storage, Packing Plant

KEREMEOS (CP)—Blackened ruins marked the site of a $600,000 cold storage plant and warehouse destroyed by fire here Friday.

The buildings, owned by the Co-Operative Fruit Growers' Association, housed thousands of boxes of apples ready for shipment from this Similkameen valley fruit centre, 170 miles east of Vancouver.

Only one man injured, suffering minor cuts, but many workers had narrow escapes as flames whipped through the big warehouse and spread to the storage plant and packing sheds.

Some office workers were forced to jump from windows to escape the fast-moving flames.

Firemen, reinforced by firefighters from Penticton and Princeton, halted the flames after a four-hour battle. Many homes were threatened as a high wind carried flaming embers throughout the town, but the fire confined to the Co-Op buildings.

Man Injured, Truck Damaged in Garbage Dump Accident

One man was burned, his truck was seriously damaged by fire and a second man escaped injury in an accident at the city dump last night.

Ingver (Swede) Morse suffered burns to his hands, feet and back when he jumped clear of his truck after it started backing up while he and Mickey Mellon were unloading garbage.

The two men recently opened the Galley Cafe on Third Avenue.

Mellon said he believed the brake slipped after they alighted. It struck him in the chest, knocking him down but Morse jumped clear and tumbled 100 feet through the burning rubbish before he was able to stop himself.

The half-ton truck stopped just as the front wheels reached the edge of the ramp.

FLAMES HIT TRUCK

Flames from burning rubbish started the fire on the truck. Mellon said he believed the engine may be salvaged.

Morse was taken to Prince Rupert General Hospital and the truck was towed into a garage after the fire department extinguished the blaze.

Mellon called the fire department after he picked himself up from the ground and discovered that his partner was injured. The ambulance raced to the scene and took Morse to hospital where he is resting.
