A Shared Experience

TODAY is the beginning of Young Canada's Book Week. This is a week in which special efforts will be made throughout the country to impress on children the value and enjoyment of good reading. It is a week which, in a certain sense, is dedicated to their future, for a child who becomes fond of books now has discovered a source of lifetime pleasure and inspiration.

While the occasion is supported actively by schools and libraries, its significance is not always understood by the community as a whole. To correct this, the sponsoring Canadian Library Association has circulated a pamphlet giving the following purposes of Book Week:

To encourage more reading of more worthwhile books by more children at home, at school and at the library.

To remind adults of the importance of a child's contact with the best books.

To make parents aware of the books available and of the pleasure that comes from books shared with their children. A shared book is a shared experience, a shared experience strengthens family

To stress the need for more books for children in every community.

"With good books children enjoy a true sense of values, a mastery of words, an understanding of people, and experience which anticipate those of real life," the Library Association observes. "Read good books aloud to savor their zestful humor, to see with their breadth of vision and to relish new words.

"Best of all is the rich warmth of heart and spirit that comes with sharing a book's sheer fun and enjoyment."

During the past few days Prince Rupert school children finished writing their book reviews for the competition which is held in connection with Young Canada's Book Week. It is safe to say that a large percentage of these children have derived a great deal of satisfaction from what they have done, whether their work is in the prize-winning bracket or not.

In both the reading and the writing there was bound to be a stimulus which many will wish to experience again. In this manner their appreciation of books has been increased, or perhaps in some cases awakened, and so they enter a richer life.

A Form of Health Insurance

DEGINNING Monday, Prince Rupert householders D will receive in the mails envelopes containing brightly colored stickers, or seals, designed in a Christmas motif. These seals make attractive decorations on Christmas mail and parcels; they are sent the world over, and carry a singular message.

The message is carried by the insignia which appears on all the seals—the cross. It is a symbol of a great crusade against an insidious and stubborn 29. enemy that still claims the lives of more than 3,000 persons in Canada annually.

The seals are a reminder to us all that we must take a part in this crusade against tuberculosis, so when the seals come to our home let's put that donation in the self-addressed return envelope and mail it immediately. The Prince Rupert Soroptimist Club, which has undertaken the annual TB seal campaign here for the B.C. Tuberculosis Society has set its objective at raising $2,800.

Money raised in this way makes possible purchase of special case finding equipment, equipping clinics and health units, public and professional educational projects, rehabilitation and many more activities from which we all stand to benefit.

Every purchase of Christmas seals spells additional prevention from tuberculosis for each of us and the community at large - it is anything but charity to give to this cause; it is a form of health insurance that benefits us all.

As I See It

Calling All Quilts

SORRY I won't be home in time to hear the speech by Vancouver's famous native born author, Oliver Philpot.

Expect to be soaking in the famous hot pool at Radium when my namesake addresse. the Vancouver Institute at Saturday night Nov. 15.

As Oliver Philpot came Vancouver as my guest, I tried to get one of his famous books STOLEN JOURNEY to autographed. But the English edition is almost oversold in Canada. The U.S. edition, just now coming out, will sell one million copies, according to U.S. radio broadcast.

DR. LOTTA HITSCHMANOVA the red-headed one woman army, blew through town the other day. Readers of this column helped Dr. Lotta collect tons of thousands of babies diapers for Greece. That was the smallest part of the great humanitarian work done by this tiny chunk of female dynamite, whose main job is to blast people out of their ignorance and of indifference to suffering other parts of the world.

Lotta right now wants lo quilts. She wants at least double size. Make them of any material, but preferably dark cloth outside as people of batting and any other woolen for their annual meeting to relining available.
