INFLUENCE OF BRITISH LEGISLATION

What makes the doings of the British Parliament so interesting here is the influence that legislative body has on legislation HARRY THRI throughout the world. The British Parliament has always been a model for other legislative bodies. The British have always led in parliamentary government. They set the pace for other countries and have not yet been overtaken.

Many think the new Trades Union Bill, which is being considered there in committee, is a backward move, but that has to be LOCAL proved. At any rate, it is an interesting thing for Canadians to watch because strikes have had a bad effect here as elsewhere.

Woman always gets the last word. If man makes his mark in the world, woman makes her remark.

EDMONTON HAVING A CLEANUP

Edmonton is having a cleanup. Here is what one of their the disposition of the canteen profits are arriving regularly. papers says:

Edmonton's cleanup campaign is in full swing. The rake, the of a million dollars. bonfire and the paint brush have been doing their bit, with result already apparent everywhere. What has been accomplished gives promise that when the job is finished the improvement in the ap- general insurance scheme for returned pearance of the city will be most marked; with a corresponding men. It was pointed out that if disgain in the value of property and the pride of the residents in the Cleaning up the yard is a task inspired by considerations of good taste and health. Painting the buildings and fences is not less a matter of good taste, and is also a measure of economy.

A friend is one who sees the good in his neighbor and gently chides for failure to live up to the standard.

WHO IS A CANADIAN TODAY?

When the census man comes around and asks a Canadian Expect to Arrive in Prince Rupert on whose ancestors have been in Canada for 100 years or 200 years to what race he belongs, the individual should have the right to say that he belongs to the Canadian race. If the authorities at Ottawa wish to figure out just what racial strains may mingle in the in- cenior ticket clerks of the Canadian Na dividual they can get as much information as possible along these lines and then figure out the proportions for themselves, says the Manitoba Free Press.

As everyone knows, there are cases on record in Manitoba where a citizen of very mixed origin and of stock that had been rooted in this country 150 years, has answered "Canadian" when asked by the census enumerator of what racial stock he came. The answer was not accepted. In each case the man's ancestry was year. tracked back along the male line until it was discovered that at some remote period the citizens had a Swedish or an Irish or Welsh male ancestor, and down in the book he went as of Swedish. Irish or Welsh racial stock. This, of course, is absurd, and if the officials at Ottawa claim that nothing can be done about it because a few Chinamen happen to be born in Canada, and that it would not be proper to list these as of the Canadian race, it is apprent that they are not trying very hard to solve the problem.

On the other hand, it is also known that a man who told the census enumerator that he was born in England is listed as of the English race, even if both his parents happened to be German. In this connection the fact that he was of English birth is accepted as proof that he belongs to the English race. This, of course, is also absurd.

A man on the street yesterday wanted to know if that Conservative revival of which much has been heard was just starting in Quebec. It was not much of a start.

NOT EVEN A BORN CANADIAN

There is a further matter where this strange business of allowing a Canadian to call himself officially anything else but Canadian also applies. Dr. Ross, member for Kingston, pointed out in the debate at Ottawa that the term "Canadian" is not accepted in connection with birth and death registration. No Canadian can come into the world as such; no Canadian is entitled to call himself a Canadian even when dying. Here we have a question, not only for the Do- the Province on July 1, is indicated minion, but for the provincial authorities. - Are they prepared to move forward and admit that Canada is here to stay and that there are going to be Canadians in the world?
