mencing to arrive from the southern states on the local market and, while the prices at present are high, they will drop very materially as the season advances. Eggs and butter prices continue to remain firm with prospect of eggs advancing some as stocks commence to move to cold storage. California tomatoes are expected on the local market soon together with other spring vegetables, the first offerings to be high in price. Florida grape fruit is now off the market although plenty of the California product is available. New potatoes are now selling at 20 cents per pound with a drop in price expected as soon as the supply becomes
