New Program Outlined For Training of Air Cadets

A meeting of the sponsoring committee of the Prince Rupert Air Cadets held in the Legion last night heard an enlightening report by Equipment Officer Bill Bryant who gave the progress of the Prince Rupert Air Cadet Squadron so far.

Most important aspect of the report was the continuing enthusiasm of the boys and their apparent enjoyment of the drill and lectures as planned by Commanding Officer Dick Garrett.

Mr. Bryant said that a rifle range will soon be available and new activities planned for the boys are basketball, volleyball and films which will be shown during recreation periods.

The uniforms will be here soon and it is planned to take a group picture of the cadets before and after they are fitted. A Christmas party and dance are planned for December 12.

Jim Taylor, president of the sponsoring committee, expressed his appreciation for the fine cooperation extended to the boys by Col. S. D. Johnston.

Henry on Caribbean Island Goes Fishing With Father

(This is the first in a group of book reviews which won prizes in the contest held in connection with Young Canada Book Week and sponsored by the Prince Rupert Public Library Association. The following review was written by 8-year-old Leslie McLaren, Grade 4, pupil of Borden Street School.—Editor)

HENRY-FISHERMAN is a story of a little boy who wanted to be a fisherman. He lives far away in the Caribbean Islands where fish of many colors swim about the clear waters.

Henry was almost old enough to go to sea for he could dive and swim very well and could easily net a school of smaller fish. All fishermen had to swim in case of sharks nearby. Henry could hardly wait to go to sea.

Every place he went he thought about fishing. He collected the shells on the beach and around the wharf. On wash days he and his sister Bianca washed the clothes while mother sewed. On market day Henry went to market to get bananas and mangoes for dinner. He and Bianca owned some goats — Jimmy, Annie and Eleanor, who pastured on a hillside above the town. Henry often climbed the hill to get the sweet, rich milk.

Sometimes he brought home coconut for his mother to make coconut pudding. Most of Henry's time was spent on the wharf watching the boats come in loaded with charcoal and mangoes from the island of Tortola, and the fishing boats with parrot fish, angel fish, grunts and snappers. And here came the Aradne, his dad's boat. As Jonas threw the rope to Henry, he said, "I need a helper next day, son. You are old enough now to go fishing."

Henry danced with joy. The next morning early Jonas and Henry went down to the dock where the Aradne was waiting for them. When they got out to sea, Henry was sent down to unhook a fish pot. A black shadow glided by in the water and before Jonas pulled Henry back into the boat, the shark had almost been seized by a shark.

All the way home Henry chuckled, "too fast for old Mister Shark."

At the dinner table mother said, "you are a fisherman now for true!" Every day after Henry went fishing with Jonas, with all the other white sails on the blue sea.

Shower Held For Popular Bride-Elect

A delightful kitchen shower was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Knutson for bride-elect Ethel Knutson whose marriage to James Georgeson takes place soon.

Twenty guests attended. Following presentation of a corsage to the guest of honor, games and contests were played and novelty prizes awarded.

In one game, the bride-to-be was awarded a shopping bag full of tinned food with all the labels removed.

When the many gifts were presented in a decorated basket, guests sang "Here Comes the Bride." A miniature bride and groom set completed the novelty decoration.

Refreshments were served on tables arranged in a T-formation, the setting enhanced by a beautifully decorated cake.

The bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. John Knutson, and her future bridesmaid, Yvonne Morin, sat at the head table.

Serving was undertaken by joint hostesses, Mrs. William Murdoch and Mrs. Percy Knutson.
