ASSUME HANACO HAS BEEN LOST

NO TRACE SEEN OF BUSHBY TUG-BOAT SINCE SHE STRUCK FRIDAY NIGHT

CREW'S NARROW ESCAPE

MOORE ADRIFT ALL NIGHT IN MOUNTAINOUS SEAS

The power tug Hanaco, which struck pulling a heavy lumber scow in a stiff southeaster, is believed to have gone down. Nothing was seen of her on Saturday or Sunday by searching boats. Capt. Jim Morrison and Ralph Moore the stranding and, indeed, were fortunate in escaping with their lives.

Instead of making shore as was driginally reported, the two men drifted all Friday night in mountainous seas. While Morrison attempted to row the small boat. Moore, who was a new hand was forced to bale constantly to keep the little craft afloat. Finally they were picked up by Capt. Jack Cook in his boat, the Joy Bird.

Capt. Morrison joined the P.R.T. outside and came in with that vesse which brought in two scowloads of herring last night. He went out again with the boat to bring in more herring SCOW SIGHTED

The lumber scow from Big which broke adrift from the Hanaco was sighted yesterday but, according reports this morning, had not yet yeen picked up.

With George Bushby, head of the Rupert Marine Products Ltd., owning the Hanaco, and other officers of the company at Port Simpson, in connection with the bringing into the plant here of herring for reduction purposes, heavy run being now on, there has been some difficulty in getting particulars not yet definitely known that she lost although it is believed so.

Built here some fifteen or sixteen years ago by Japanese who operated her at first, the Hanaco was later acquired by Capt. Robert Gammon who used her as a towboat and diving tender . A few years ago, she became the property of Frebourg and Jorgenson who used her as a halibut boat. Last year, the Bushby interests purchased the vessel and it has since been engaged in towing work. She was 50 feet long and was powered with a 40 h.p. Union

BOOZE IS THE STUFF THAT MAKES NICARAGUAN TROOPS FIGHT IN GAUDY UNIFORMS

NEW YORK, March 7 .- The way Nicaraguan forces are made to fight by their generals is to fill them up with liquor and tell them how wicked the other side is according to William Brooks, American aviator with the Nicaraguan forces, in a despatch to the New York Times.

"You never can tell when a battle will occur or won't in this war," continues Brooks. "Zero hours come when the general gets his mob drunk enough to fight and the general who knows best the men's capacity is the one who is likely to win the war.

"Nearly all the soldiers on both sides are conscripts and come dressed in all kinds of uniforms. At a recent review of a new army, one fellow wore a pink bathrobe and bedroom slippers and another, a full dress suit."

ACROSS UNINHABITED WASTES OF ALASKA TO SUMMON AID FOR DYING MASTER

INDIAN TELLS STORY

Trapper Dies in Lonely Cabin North of Circle City-Body was Found by Ginnis Solomon

race across the most uninhabited section of Northern Alaska to summon aid for their dying master has been revealed here. The story was related by Ginnis Solomon, an Indian, who lives one hundred miles north of Circle City. Two dogs of Roy Felter, trapper, arrived at Solomon's lonely cabin early last Monday morning. Their feet were cut and bleeding from a long race over jagged ice and snow. Each bore a note from Felter. The notes were wet, faded and unreadable but Solomon started out for Felter's camp, feeling that the trapper was ill and needed aid. The stricken man was dead when Solomon arrived. From signs on his snowshoes it was indicated that he had started out for assistance but was overcome by weakness and returned to the cabin.
