LOCAL CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE

The Omineca Herald is wrong. We did not advocate the nominating of Mayor Newton as Conservative candidate. We only remarked that after the manner in which he had attended the big convention and taken up Prince Rupert's cause in the south it was becoming increasingly difficult for the local Conservatives not to nominate him, in view of the fact that he is already in the field as a Conservative. That may be a humorous situation but it is the situation as it exists today. Here is what the Herald has to say about it:

"One of the most laughable of the many laughable stunts the Prince Rupert News pulls was the editorial in a recent issue patting Mayor Newton on the back for his progressiveness and pointing out that the mayor should most certainly be endorsed by the Conservative party as candidate in Prince Rupert. The News knows that S. M. Newton is not and has not been for a long time a member of the Conservative party. Leading members of the party say that he is not being and will not be asked to join the party. But the object the News has is to keep S. M. Newton in the field and make another three-cornered fight in that riding. The Conservative party will deal with the matter of a candidate in due course and it is safe to say that the News will not be invited to participate in making that decision."

We were not aware before that the editor of the Herald was the oracle of the Tory party, but it is an interesting bit of news and his article shed a new light on the local situation.

So far as we are concerned we do not care who is in the field or who stays out. We are hopeful that a good man will be elected and when the time comes we hope to discuss the matter, but just now it seems as if the provincial election was a good many moons away. But in the meantime the announcement continues to be made every day that Mayor Newton is in the field as a Conservative candidate.

MEMBER OF PARTY

To say that Mr. Newton is not a member of the Conservative party is begging the question. It is understood that he attended the recent Conservative convention in this city and that he also was at the Conservative convention at Winnipeg as a Conservative and that he voted there. If that does not make him a Conservative, what does?

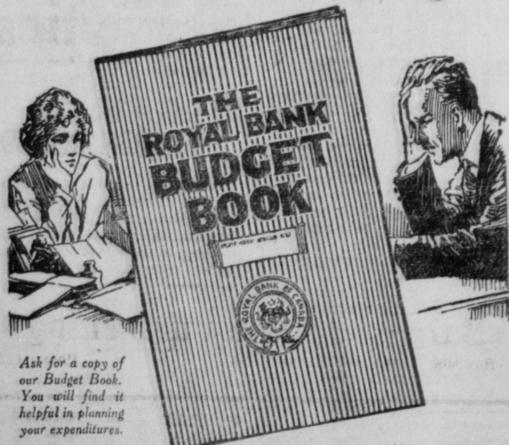

We think it would be a pity to have three men in the field when election time comes but, judging by past experiences, we do not see how it is to be avoided unless it is by the local party endorsing the mayor.

PEACE RIVER WESTERN OUTLET

Prince Rupert people should not take too seriously the talk about various western outlets to the Peace River country. It is possible that if it is built by the C.P.R. it may come out by way of Stewart and if it does it will benefit Prince Rupert a great deal and we shall have no kick coming. On the other hand every effort is being made to take it to Vancouver.

Looked at from a purely business point of view, it is possible that the shortest route would be to Stewart but that city has very little as yet in the way of terminals. Prince Rupert would be the next best route, the best grade, and it has all the terminals ready and an elevator now doing business. Vancouver's advantage lies in its great population and the fact that population brings business to a railway. It is a sort of inverse ratio. Naturally Prince Rupert people wish it to come this way and there are a good many indications that it will do so.

OPTIMISTIC FOR PRINCE RUPERT

Interior Editor Sees Prosperity Here and Urges Co-operation With Interior

(Omineca Herald)
Although no one would suspect it by press reports coming out of that city but Prince Rupert has been enjoying a good measure of prosperity and it begins to look as if the city was getting away to a good start. The worst days are over. The interior has a great interest in Prince Rupert. That city is and must always be the chief market for interior products. Every increase in Rupert's wealth, every increase in her industry, means just so much more produce from the interior will be needed. It is probably true that most of the farm produce consumed in Rupert comes from the south, but it is not so bad today as it was a couple of years ago. Both the coast city and the interior deserve credit for this improved condition. They are getting better acquainted with produce and requirements. Another year or two and the south should be shut out of the northern market.

The northern market is growing, too. Probably the growth is greater than the increase in production. The city is looking forward to a bigger year than any in its history, from a commercial point of view. The grain elevator will by no means be responsible for all the increase, although it is believed that more than double the quantity of grain will be handled this year. Sawmills in the city and district and mining in the north and in the interior will be responsible for a lot of trade in the northern city. The interior will do well to cater more and more to the business of Prince Rupert.

HOSPITAL DANCE MUCH ENJOYED

All Conditions Favorable to Successful Event but Attendance not Very Large

The annual Hospital Hallowe'en ball was just as enjoyable as ever and the preparations for it were made by active committees who must have worked hard to make it a successful event. The music was excellent, floor fine, supper a dream of delight and the crowd was in excellent humor but the one drawback from the point of view of the promoters was that the attendance was not as large as on some former occasions.

The president, Mrs. Fyfe, and all her helpers must be congratulated on the excellent arrangements. Music was provided by Bob Greenwood's Commanders, consisting of R. Greenwood, Miss Irene Morrison, Kenny Rood and George Rorie Jr. Committees were as follows: Refreshments: Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Reddie and Mrs. Dybhavn.

Decorations: Mrs. Ben Self, Mrs. Chris Elkins and Mrs. Gallon.
Raffles: Mrs. Dibo.
Music: Mrs. Stork and Mrs. Jabour.
Door: Messrs. Parsons and Elkins.
Percy Tinker was master of ceremonies and he kept everything moving happily until about two o'clock.
Underwear presented to the auxiliary by Richmond's Louvre was raffled and won by Mrs. Morris Blott.

Man in the Moon

THERE seem to be as many things to disagree over as to agree about.

I DO not like my neighbor.
For never could I see
Why folks should care to listen to
A silly ass like he.

WE are told that man sprang from the monkey but some of them never sprang.

THE floor was all right, the music was good, the gowns were pretty but the dancing was scandalous. There, now I've unburdened my mind. It was just like every other dance. The dancing was terrible. None of them could dance except me.

IT is rumored that the local plasterer's union is to take up with some of the ladies the matter of plastering without a union card.

BUT people are not always as pink as they are painted or as thick as they are plastered.

IT'S easy to save money. I save it up for the week ends.

THE old gentleman tumbled over a five-barred gate just in time to save himself from the angry bull. "You brute," he spluttered, shaking his fist at the animal, "and I've been a vegetarian all my life."

HISTORY records the story that Hezekiah, king of Judah, fearing that he was near to death, asked, as a sign that he might be spared, that the shadow should move backward upon the sundial of Ahaz.

As Hezekiah, trembling in anticipation, watched, it is said that the shadow slowly ceased its onward course and commenced to move backward around the dial, in token of the fact that fifteen years were added to the life of the king.

Fifteen years of added life meant much to Hezekiah—it would mean much to us today.

Yet we, of this generation, enjoy an average life many years longer than our ancestors just a century ago. These years have been added to the average, individual life—without any seeming miracle—without even very common knowledge, proving that

Life Can Be Prolonged

A steadily-growing programme of health conservation has been launched and given impetus, thanks to the efforts of far-seeing and humanitarian men. Each year sees an increasing interest being taken in the prevention of illness and disease—in giving every child an opportunity of becoming a strong, healthy, happy man or woman.

Any plan which has as its object the bettering of public health and the prolonging of human life merits the unreserved support of every thinking citizen. It is our responsibility—it is our business—to see that every care is taken in the matter of sanitation, and prevention of contagion, that healthful rules of living are followed, and that the regulations and practices of preventive medicine are employed.

What You Can Do

There are certain steps we can all take to assist in the wide-spread programme of welfare and health, such as attention to little ills as they appear; care of the teeth, eyes, skin, etc.; prevention of contagious or infectious diseases; proper feeding and care of children; regular habits of living and diet; thorough examination by a competent medical authority at regular intervals.

When sickness threatens seek proper advice. Have a thorough medical examination at least once a year.

BIDS CITY ADIEU.

Editor Daily News,
It would be ungrateful to me to take my departure without thanking my many friends for their trade and goodwill. My success has been through my persistent efforts and your co-operation. My reason for leaving is that I have other interests which demand my time and attention.

I wish particularly to thank those who have given me financial and other assistance and also the bank where I do business. I also thank the Daily News for the way in which they have handled my advertisements.

I hope and expect that big changes are coming for Prince Rupert and that the city will go ahead by leaps and bounds.
