OTHER FISH IN THE SEA

Salmon and Halibut Have so Far Been Almost Only Taken Commercially

With the depletion of halibut and salmon in northern waters it is certain that attention will be devoted to other varieties of fish. What applies here also applies in Alaska and here is what a Ketchikan paper says:

As another illustration of the wealth of fish in Alaskan waters which may be utilized for commercial purposes, two small boats, one of them a troller, filled their dories with cod fish while the boats were tied to the face of the dock today.

The men on board used hand lines and soon had a "deck load" of fine gray cod. They salt them and ship them to the states.

There is one man in Ketchikan who has made a small fortune in catching and salting cod fish. He does not make a lot of money at any one time but he has kept at it steadily and his small profits have made him practically independent.

"This all goes to show," remarked a dealer today, "that we have not begun to 'farm' the best of our sea 'crops.' Many variety of edible fish swarm in the bays surrounding Ketchikan, but our people, of course, have gone after the salmon and the halibut, in which there is the most money.

It was only a few years ago that any attention was paid to Alaska herring. Since that time fortunes have been made and the herring is now in danger of extinction from extensive fishing.

"Formerly halibut fishermen used to throw away the red snappers and sable fish, caught on the halibut gear, but these are now saved and brought to market. The bays swarm with sea bass, deposits of clams can be found along many of the beaches, crabs are thick in many bays, shrimps can be found in paying quantities, and there are so many other varieties of edible fish that it is difficult to enumreate them. In time these fish will furnish year round industries with numerous by-product plants to utilize the waste."

THRILLERS OF COAST GUARDS

Number of Recent Combats in Which Lives Have Been Lost off Florida

SMUGGLING ALIENS

Planes Sighted in the Air and Kept From Landing Liquor From Bahamas

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Nov. 23.—One thrilling adventure after another, rivalling those of days when pirate ships sailed the high seas and buccaneers compelled their prisoners to walk the plank, makes up the life of the coast guardsmen battling rum runners in Florida waters.

Prices have been put upon the heads of several guardsmen, officers declare, as the struggle to halt the smuggling of liquor becomes more acute. Winter's icy winds in the north are turning the bows of many runners southward, resulting in increased activity along the Florida coast.

When a slim, speedy government chaser, armed with one-pounders, closes up on the boat filled with illegal cargo, the officers seldom know whether the crew will surrender, abandon the vessel or choose to "fight it out."

THREE OFFIERS KILLED

There was, for example, the recent battle about 30 miles off Fort Lauderdale in which three officers were killed and a fourth wounded when Coast Guard Boat No. 249 captured a rum runner.

The 249 was on its way to Nassau, in the Bahamas, carrying Robert K. Webster, secret service operative, to trace counterfeit $50 bills used in rum transactions, when it spotted and closed in on the rum boat and captured Horace Alderman and Robert E. Weech.

While officers transferred the cargo, Sidney Sanderlin, boatswain, sought to get in touch by radio with the Fort Lauderdale base. Suddenly, the account goes, Alderman fired down the hatch and killed Sanderlin. Victor A. Lamby, motor machinist, rushed to aid the fallen man and was mortally wounded by a bullet through his spine.

Alderman grabbed Lamby's gun, gave it to Weech and ordered the other six government men to "line up."

"Move the whisky back to our boat," he instructed Weech, "and then go below and set this government boat on fire."

As Weech went into the hold Webster jumped for Alderman. He was killed instantly with a bullet through his head. Jodie L. Hollingsworth, following the secret service man, was wounded through the eye and nose. But it was the "break," and the rest of the small crew rushed upon Alderman and Weech and overpowered them, and brought them to port. They now await trial at Jacksonville for first degree murder.

ALIENS AND NARCOTICS

Closely allied with rum running is the smuggling of aliens and narcotics. An affidavit in government possession tells how a rum boat took 27 aliens from Cuba to an island off Florida, only to return in a few days to rob them of all they had. Other stories tell of aliens paying the smuggling fees, being taken aboard, and being set adrift at sea or drowned.

Strategy is used oftener than force to land liquor. Submersible steel tanks, carrying about 600 cases of liquor, were used with success for awhile, towed behind boats and cut adrift if guardsmen pressed too closely.

Attempts to smuggle by aeroplane are no longer novel. Planes can easily fly between the British Bahamas and Florida, but federal operatives now know how to deal with them. They are sighted in the air and kept from landing.

Even when rum runners desert their boats, danger lurks often in bombs with time fuses or explosives attached to the ignition. More than 5,000 miles of coast line around Florida offer innumerable bayous and inlets where rum runners try to land cargo. To meet the situation reinforcements are being added and a section base is to be set up at St. Petersburg with an off-shore patrol of six vessels. The coast guard also uses planes.

Man in the Moon

THE most interesting thing in Prince Rupert these days is not the assizes but the weather.

IN spite of all the criticism of the Baldwin Government in Britain, it is noticed that the pound has reached a higher point since pre-war days.

I ALWAYS thought the aldermen were pretty slow. Not one so far has announced that he will be a candidate at the forthcoming election.

THERE are five senatorships vacant and I know a lot of men who would like the job. Even your uncle would not mind having a steady income with nothing to do.

I WISH I were a senator
With not a thing to do
I'd buy myself a cuspidor
Or else I'd learn to chew.

NOW possibly we can let the halibut alone for a few months so they will have a chance to obey the biblical command "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the water."

I HOPE no smart Alek will write to the editor and complain that I do not know my Bible. If that quotation is not right it is as near right as a lot of things that are published in newspapers.

THE next thing to think about after Christmas is a new grand stand for the athletic ground.

THERE is no place
In all the land,
Where they need as much
A big grand stand.
For whether it blows,
Or whether it rains,
There's danger of getting
Rheumatic pains.

NOVEMBER 23, 1917.

An organization meeting on behalf of Col. C. W. Peck, D.S.O., Unionist candidate in the forthcoming federal election, was held last night, speakers including Rev. W. W. Wright and Canon G. A. Rix. An executive committee has been named consisting of G. W. Morrow, E. F. Doyle, Kenneth Munro, W. O. Fulton, George Frizzell and S. M. Newton.

As a result of recent floods, the railroad has been washed out at many points between Kwinitsa and Terrace and several farmers have lost everything. It will be many days yet before railway service may be resumed.

Further witnesses in the case of Peter Whitewash, who is to be tried at the session of the Supreme Court Assizes now in session here on a charge of attempting to murder Provincial Constable J. A. Williams, arrived in the city from Bella Coola on the Prince Rupert this morning.
