School of Navigation to be Reopened Here-Activity in Shell Fishing-Scrap Fishing Deferred Until New Year

Generally gratifying is the announcement made by Capt. Lionel H. Lindsay, examiner of masters and mates from Vancouver, who has been a visitor in the city during the past week arranging for the classes, that it is the intention of the government to reopen the school for navigation in Prince Rupert this winter. Classrooms will be established in the headquarters on the waterfront of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve and Capt. J. R. Elfert, harbormaster and port warden, will act as instructor. The classes will be opened in the very near future, a meeting having been held on
