CHAMBERLAIN SUGGESTS TEMPORARY U.S. AGREEMENT

Chamberlain Expects a Temporary Arrangement Over Warship Program

LONDON, July 27.—Sir Austin Chamberlain in the House of Commons today said it was the opinion of the government that there would be no difficulty in arriving at a temporary arrangement regarding the future of cruiser building. However, the Empire could not be asked to give such a temporary arrangement the appearance of an immutable principle to be treated as a precedent.

"Despite the efforts of our delegates, serious misapprehension of the aims of the British government still prevail in some quarters," said the minister of foreign affairs. "It has even been charged that we have a desire to destroy the equality of sea power between United States and the British Empire which the Washington conference contemplated, a suspicion for which there is no foundation."

Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Viscount Cecil left for Geneva this morning. Viscount Cecil said while he was always hopeful as to the outcome of the conference he could not but regard the position as unquestionably critical.

VISITOR HERE IS SURPRISED

Unable to Secure Information About Roads of Interior B.C.

Rev. R. W. Taylor, D.D., Associate Secretary of the Board of National Missions, Synod of Nebraska, was a passenger northbound on the Prince Rupert this afternoon.

Dr. Taylor travelled on his motorcycle from Omaha, Nebraska, to Calgary, a distance of 2,500 miles. He found the roads in parts bad owing to the abnormally heavy rainfall but thinks that in ordinary years the journey would be a popular one for motor traffic. He was disappointed that he did not know that he could have cycled to Hazelton. He complains that it was only with much difficulty that he found out the possibilities of motor travel in Canada and particularly at Edmonton. The authorities did not know, it seemed, what was possible.

Each year he travels over a considerable area and takes photographic views of the scenery which are later made into slides. Last year he covered the British Isles.

Prince Rupert surprised him. He expected that a city so far north would be restricted in its entertainments and amusements. He finds the city well laid out, progressive and clean.

From here Mr. Taylor goes to Alaska and northern points.

Irish Dail Passes the Public Safety Act on Receiving Assurances

DUBLIN, July 27.—President Cosgrave's declaration before the Dail yesterday fixing the murder of Vice-president Kevin O'Higgins on the extreme wing of the irregular army, secured the passage of his drastic Public Safety Act.

Some of the members, believing the murder was due to private vengeance, hesitated to accord the government the exceptional powers the new measure provided for. The question was asked where the deported persons would go, as it was assumed they would be unable to secure passports.

Vice-president Blythe said the persons aimed at were dangerous to Ireland only. Passports would be given them to go anywhere else.

The bill gives the government the following powers:

1. To declare a state of emergency at any time, to establish military courts to try certain offenses.
2. To deport any citizen belonging to an illegal organization.
3. To suppress any unconstitutional publications.
4. To suppress illegal organizations.
5. To extend the death penalty to persons convicted of concealing arms.

"You will all have to take into consideration," the home secretary went on. "The fact that there is emanating from or engineered by Moscow in nearly every country of the world a section of the community who are perfectly hostile to the country of their birth—men who are trying to undermine the constitutions of the various civilized countries throughout the world.
