TUNGSTEN AT HYDER MINE

Plans Made by Owners of the Riverside to Produce it in Commercial Quantities

Production of tungsten on a commercial scale will soon be an accomplished fact in the Portland Canal district, says the Portland Canal News. Recent developments at the Riverside mine have disclosed the presence of scheelite, the commercial ore of tungsten, in such quantities that the managing engineer, R. G. Mellin, has announced his intention of providing facilities in the concentrating mill for saving it.

WAS A NUISANCE
Under the old regime, some scheelite was encountered and proved to be somewhat of a nuisance in the mill, as it gathers with the galena on the tables and reduces the grade of the silver-lead concentrates, which are shipped to a smelter on the coast having no facilities for saving the tungsten values. In fact there are only two places in the United States (and none in Canada) that are prepared to treat tungsten ores. These are in New Jersey and Niagara Falls.

But when there is enough tungsten in the ore mined to make the saving of it worth while, it becomes a valuable asset. Latest quotations for western scheelite are $11 per unit, or about 60¢ per pound, nearly ten times the amount received for the lead content of the ore treated. The amount of scheelite ore now in sight is enough to warrant such changes in mill practice as will be necessary for its recovery.

ON ALASKAN SIDE
Fortunately for the Riverside mine, it is situated in the Alaskan portion of the Portland Canal mineral belt, and will escape the 60 per cent duty imposed by the U.S.A. against imported tungsten ores.

The principal uses of tungsten are in toughening high-speed tool steel and making filaments for electric light globes. The ore has been considered as being strictly a southern product, and its occurrence this far north is somewhat of an oddity, according to mining men. However, the scope of this district's resources is as yet hardly guessed, and the occurrence of any of the rare minerals or metals would cause no special surprise.

Man in the Moon

HOW easily we all forget. That is why it is necessary to advertise all the time.

THE latest thing in hotels is a built in corkscrew and the down to the moment in apartments is a built in can opener. Next thing will be a built in housemaid.

DON'T pin your faith to any man For all of them forget. Just plod along the road of life From morning till sunset.

IF you would have an idea remembered, sell it on the easy payment plan.

YOU probably have heard about the man who was in the police court and the magistrate asked him if he was married. He replied that he was not. This was the first time he had been in trouble.

IT was on Third Avenue I was reminded that there were eleven persons for every motor car in Canada, for I saw all eleven in it.

DON'T take a tramp through the woods. Better take your brother.

THE supervisor of a Western railroad received the following note from one of his track foremen:

"I am sending in the accident report on Casey's foot when he struck it with the spike maul. Now, under 'Remarks,' do you want mine or do you want Casey's?"

In The Letter Box

QUESTION OF LICENSE.

Editor Daily News.
Please don't get me in wrong. I had enough backbone to appear before the city council to back up my letter in connection with my license. I have never asked for favors and will give no quarter. I am only one man but can hold my own with my opponents or their co-workers. There are men carrying on wholesale two or three lines of business who should be paying wholesale license of $50 for each business getting clear with the payment of $10. There should be an investigation in regard to licenses and those who should pay them and those who should not.

It is time the citizens should wake up and find out how their affairs are run. If I was to fail for everything that was intended for me I would be a hopeless mess. I am paying my way and no one will suffer through the downfall of my agents. If I can't pay up and look pleasant, then all I have to say is, it is better to owe a man than cheat him. I hope the citizens will judge my letter by the way it was written and its intentions. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am the servant of the public until I close my business.
G. F. BRINE, (Auctioneer.)
Following is the letter I sent the city which I hope you will publish:

THE LETTER.

I would like to bring before you what I call an injustice. I have taken out five auctioneer licenses in a period of doing actual business, one year or a little better, my business being closed down six months and suffered loss by a swindler of over $450. I have just recently took out a license and I may only be in business for one month longer in this city. I have been informed I must also take out a business license which will make my license $40 per year. All the furniture dealers and others are handling second-hand

The Mining Laws of this Province are more liberal and the fees lower than those of any other Province in the Dominion, or any colony in the British Empire.

Mineral locations are granted to discoverers for nominal fees. Absolute Titles are obtained by developing such properties, the security of which is guaranteed by Crown grants.

Full information, together with Mining Reports and Maps, may be obtained gratis by addressing—

THE HONORABLE THE MINISTER OF MINES, VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

N.B.—Practically all British Columbia Mineral Properties upon which development work has been done are described in some one of the Annual Reports of the Minister of Mines. Those considering mining investments should refer to such reports. They are available without charge on application to the Department of Mines, Victoria, B.C. Reports of the Geological Survey of Canada, Winch Building, Vancouver, are recommended as valuable sources of information.

Reports covering of the Six Mineral Survey Districts are published separately, and are available on application.

Warning

I am discriminated against? There is not enough business to warrant such a demand. I have never got one $ worth of support from the city since I started business here and any business in my line that I should get is either put up for tender or sold privately. I am not asking for any favors. All I want is justice and a square deal. Hoping you will cancel the payment of the business license as take Vancouver for instance, the auctioneers license covers the business of an auctioneer selling by auction or private sale. Hoping the matter will be adjusted. I am truly yours.
G. F. BRINE,
Auctioneer, Prince Rupert, B.C.
