SPRING SEASON TIME OF HOPE.

Considering all things, Prince Rupert has come through another winter very well. Business may not have been quite as good as some of them might have liked but we are still here and none | Club, was in the chair. of us have starved to death on it or suffered from the cold either.

Spring is now opening with its usual promise of industrial and PLAYERS' CLUB HAS business activity in city and district. It is the season when everything looks bright and hopeful. QUALIFICATION OF PARENTS.

As a result of much discussion on the responsibilities of parents toward their children, particularly as they concern health, Avenue East. The gathering was habit formation and the creation of a proper attitude toward moral problems, the national executive of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council has been dealing with a stream, of inquiries about parent president J. S. Wilson welcomed several education. In connection with a series of Canadian lecture course new and prospective members, explainon the matter, A. D. Hardie, head of the education division of the ing to them the aims and objects of Council has suggested the following as essential qualifications for the club. It was reported that refathers and mothers:

Qualifications of a Father: 1-Good health. Good stock and a desire to keep himself and his children fit and ready for a long life by proper exercise and regular physical examination. 2-Companionship with his children. An ability to see things from their point of view. Ability to retain their confidence in all matters. 3-Good general knowledge so that his conversation at home is worth Ladies' Orchestra, under the direction listening to. 4-A good example to his children, especially in his attitude to his wife and to all women.

Qualifications of a Mother: 1-Good health. Good stock and C. DECLINE OF DIGNITY.

When the Romans desired to compliment a man they spoke of of ceremonies and Mrs. C. E. Cullin was his dignity. By that word they implied excellence and a goodly in charge of the serving of delicious supply of the virtues. From the Romans the barbarians who con- refreshments. quered them acquired an esteem for dignity. And even today some consider dignity one of the higher virtues.

But of late something has happened to dignity. It has come under suspicion as being a cloak for rascality on the one hand and stupidity on the other. It is regarded not as inherent in man's nature, but as something assumed. Hence an affectation. The contempt in which it is commonly held is evidenced by the application of the slang expression "stuffed shirt" to those who make a show of dignity.

Today those devoid of dignity guard against acquiring and those in whom it is inherent make every effort to conceal it. About the only place it is tolerated is in the courts, but too great show of it even on the bench conveys an impression the opposite of that desired by the pompous.

Dignity, being part and parcel of aristocracy, is necessarily major. inimical to democracy. So those who try so hard to be democratic could not tolerate dignity and be consistent.

However, in defense of dignity it must be conceded the dignity sary declaration in order to have their Madame d'Arblay hated "because it's the dullest thing in the world" names enrolled on the provincial voters' is a different dignity from that which "begins where boasting ends." list.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL WEDDED IN VICTORIA

Miss Thelma Dingwall Becomes Bride of H. W. Stevens of Vancouver

A pretty Easter wedding, artistic in all its details, was solemnized at the Oak Bay United Church, Victoria, recently by Rev. W. A. Guy, who united in marriage, Miss Thelma Gwendolin Dingwall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Dingwall of Prince Rupert, to Herbert William Stevens of Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Stevens, and nephew of Hon. H. H. Stevens.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, and proceeded to an arch-R. H. PURPOSE?

A MAN wouldn't use a spade to do the work of a hoe. A woman wouldn't buy a piece of fine silk to make a work apron.

Why would you expect one varnish, for general purposes, satisfactory?

Varnishes are compounded from a mixture of gums and linseed oil. But - just what gum, how much oil, how much "cooking" and what degree of heat, depends upon the purpose for which the varnish is intended.

It's not a difficult matter for you to decide what varnish you need. Simply tell the dealer at Paint Headquarters what the job is, or write Sherwin-Williams, 897 Centre Street.

Montreal, for a copy of the "Household Guide Manual." There are good Sherwin-Williams Varnishes for every purpose and the world knows none better.
