DUTHIE MINE IS PARTLY SHUT FOR WHILE JUST NOW

Causes Temporary Curtailment of Operations at the Duthie Mine on Hudson Bay Mountain near Smithers have been temporarily curtailed on account of the breaking of a crusher in the mill and also because of a water shortage resulting from the recent spell of dry weather. When repairs have been effected and the drought ended, activity will be resumed at full blast.

J. F. Duthie, wealthy Seattle shipmilder and owner of the Duthie mine, was a passenger south from train to boat Saturday night after a visit of inpection to the property.

Crown Colony Days Away back in the late sixties thousands of acres of British Columbia's timber were sold for one cent per acre, which looked like a fair price-then. Today similar timber is worth from $150 to $200 per acre, so tremendously has timber appreciated in value within the scope of an average lifetime.

What the young growth of today will be worth sixty years from now is beyond computation if it is protected from fire and allowed to reach maturity.

The moral is obvious.
