Little Theatre Group Hits Road For Out-of-Town Presentation

Prince Rupert's Little Theatre group goes on the road with its show tomorrow night.

The troupe will board a special theatrical car of the Canadian National Railways for its Terrace trip, where it will present its winter production of "Ask Me No Questions," a mystery comedy which completed its successful two-day run here in the Civic Centre auditorium Tuesday night.

Gerry Woodside, producer and director of the play, says he and his troupe have received a cordial invitation from the Terrace Civic Centre to present the play there for a one night's stand Saturday.

The group will take with it props and scenery used here, but will use furniture supplied by the Terrace organization.

Another play is being planned, possibly in the spring, says Mr. Woodside.

Port Simpson Woman Passes

Funeral arrangements are being made here for Mrs. Tom Gosnell, 55, of Port Simpson, who died in her sleep there Monday night.

Surviving her are her husband, Tom and three children, a son, John; two daughters, Mrs. Reggie Samson and Daisy, and seven grandchildren, all of Port Simpson.

Remains were transferred to Prince Rupert this morning. The funeral arrangements are in charge of B.C. Undertakers.

Writing Good Future For Women

MONTREAL (C) — Industrial writing and editing offer unlimited opportunities for women, says Audrey R. Rushbrook of Kingston, Ont.

Miss Rushbrook in addressing a conference of Canadian industrial editors here suggested that women should keep these opportunities in mind when obtaining their education.

Herself editor of the Abstract Bulletin of Aluminum Laboratories, Miss Rushbrook stressed that a high degree of technical knowledge is often required for industrial writing. This made such work attractive to those in-

Named Prexy Of Shriners

Ted Boulter last night was elected president of the Prince Rupert Shrine Club, succeeding Roy Evans, who was named a director for a three-year term.

A. J. (Dom) Dominato was elected vice-president and Al Sheardown succeeded Mervin Martin as secretary. Auditors are Don Ritchie and Bill Sheardown.

A good turnout attended the regular monthly meeting in the Broadway and plans were discussed for the invitation ball on New Year's Eve at the Armories.
