OUTSIDERS CAN SEE FUTURE.

It has often been said that it takes outsiders to perceive the possibilities of Prince Rupert or any other place under similar circumstances for that matter.

Perspective seems to some extent to have been lost by many of its nearer proximity to the Orient which Parliament House has been people who have been on the ground here for some time. Their an- than any other Pacific port. ticipations were too high when they came and certain measures of "Then what of the local situation dominating the surrounding landscape." disapointment have distorted some views till they are now unduly within the confines of British Columbia? Department buildings are also in the pessimistic.

Losing sight of possibilities diminishes the facility of grasping opportunities. The optimistic person is the one who is able to take occasion by the hand. There is everything to be gained and nothing to be lost by optimism. Pessimism is just the reverse.

The Edmonton Journal paints a pretty picture of the possibilities of Prince Rupert. Can it be that outsiders can see the future of this place and that local residents have lost sight of it?

ROYAL COMMISSION ON CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

The royal commission sitting in Victoria now to investigate campaign fund contributions does not seem, to date at least, to be serving much of a purpose. LONELINESS OF THE GREAT.

The wages of public life is loneliness upon retirement. Great conditions that confronted the Canadian careers do not always last until death, so in the interim between Northern and is now merged with the the end of the career and death there must be years of comparative Canadian Northern in the Canadian seclusion away from the glamor and numerous associations of public National system. Instead of remaining life and with days of solitude. For those who outlive their allotted a separate entity to fight for itself, it time in the public spotlight there are years to be lived in the past with memories for company.

Just as poverty is the cause of more misery to those who have always been rich than to those who rose from want to wealth and tasted poverty again, so loneliness, which may be sweet to those accustomed to it, may be torture to one who has lived in the very midst of things. The busy man weighted down with cares often dreams of the time when he can leave them all behind and seek sweet solitude only to find, when his dream comes true, that his own and a wrong impression. It smacks of company is poor company. Habits of life are not so easily discarded.

But many men of affairs have experienced a feeling of lone- by J. G. Sullivan." liness at the height of their careers. It seems the greater the decisions they have had to make the more lonely have been the great cisions they have had to make the more lonely have been the great CANBERRA MADE figures of history. Nothing is so calculated to create this feeling than opposition-something, it seems, no great career has been without.

Premier Baldwin, of England, has joined the silent band of lonely men, announcing in a recent speech that with the passing of years he feels extremely lonely. Disraeli, Gladstone, Lincoln, Na- AUSTRALIAN CAPITAL HAS BEEN 11 poleon, Cromwell and Carlyle all voiced this sentiment. Milton was a lonely figure while writing his greatest works. These modern dictators, Mussolini and de Rivera, are pitiful in their loneliness, for the cares of state have crowded out of their lives cherished associations.

Report of Engineers on Peace River Outlet Rapped by Lands Minister--- Unfair to This Port

In an interview given out in Vancouver, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands and member of the legislature for the constituency of Prince Rupert, took exception to the report of the engineers appointed by the Dominion government to investigate the question of railway outlet from the Reace River country to the coast.

In this connection, Mr. Pattullo said: "There is one paragraph in the report to which I would like to make particular reference and which in detail discusses the relative merits of the ports of Vancouver and Prince Rupert as termini of a western outlet from the Peace River. It is an old saying:

'comparisons are odious,' and so it in this case. YEARS IN MAKING-GARDEN CITY OF CLIMATE AND SCENIC BEAUTY

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 24 (Canadian Press.)-Canberra, Australia new Federal Capital, to be formally opened as the seat of government by dis Royal Highness the Duke of York on May 9 next, has already a population of about 5,000 persons. Incidentally, it is CANberra, not CanBERRA, soon. the accent being properly on the first syllable. Canberra is 75 miles inland from the east coast of the continent and in respect to population, is practically centrally situated, being 150 miles direct from Sydney, 240 miles land. from Melbourne, and 500 miles from Adelaide, Brisbane and Hobart. The "made-to-order" city has been 11 years in the making. Canberra was first settled in 1823. It was accepted as the seat of future government and was ceded to the Commonwealth by New South Wales in 1909. Commonwealth ownership became active in 1911, and constructional activity commenced with its official naming by Lady Denman in 1913. Designs for the best possible city were called for, and engineering works and some architectural construction was proceeded with until 1916. The activities which ceased then, were renewed in 1921 when the government appointed the Federal Cap-Ital advisory committee. In 1923 the sitting parliament decided its succespointed a Federal Capital Commission, which concentrated upon the question and accelerated all activities. Private interprise was admitted to share in the development in 1925, leases being sold in the city in December, 1924. Canberra land is not to be disposed of for any estate in freehold, so that and surrounding the actual city is leased for terms not exceeding 25 years. Land within the city limits is leased for not more than 99 years, and buildings constructed must be approved by the government.

ATTRACTIVE CITY

The result of this guardianship is ustified by the facts and to the injury prospects of becoming not only a city of political and commercial importance, but also by reason of its fine climate and scenic beauty a city particularly attractive to tourists.
