The small boys were making good use of the small patch of ice at the week end bringing to our attention the lack of ice skating facilities in the city, Occasionally there is sufficient frost for a short period during the winter so that skating at the Salt Lakes is possible for a short time. This is however, only an aggravation so far as the winter season is concerned and only brings attention to the lack of this popular Canadian pastime in Prince Rupert. Since hockey has made such progress in the past few years and many American cities have built very costly rinks providing artificial ice, and many Canadian cities have as well turned to artibefore this city should be able to support a rink of fair proportions. Skating is a delightful pastime which provides good exercise and the games played on the silvery surface are both fast and exciting. A swimming pool and a rink should scarcely be mentioned in the

Apart from the Labor day sports and the few races conducted on July 1 each year there is very little interest taken locally in field and track athletics. The intensive training which is required for this class of sports is very good discipline for any athlete. The spring time is usually the best season for these sports and is generally used all over the country as a fitting time for competitions. Athletes generally start early after the New Year to train and in the early spring a few indoor meets are held and, in the later spring, outside competitions become popular. There is plenty of room in Prince Rupert to cultivate an interest in this line of sport which is open to a very large number of aspirants.

The past year saw several track records broken, among them the 100 yard dash which was lowered to 91/2 seconds by Charley Paddock. Dr. Otto Peltzer, perhaps, was the sensation of the year on the track and he eclipsed Ted Meredith's long standing record for the half mile. On Tuesday the Canadian National steamer Prince Charles spoke the Oregon Fir, then lying helpless with her sails blown away.
