PRINCIPLES OF CHIROPRACTIC

THE NERVE IMPULSE

The neurones form pathways along which the nerve-impulses travel. It is through the power of conductivity possessed by the neurones that the impulses travel along the nerves. The impulses which arrive at the cell-body produce there chemical changes. These changes, when they reach a given volume, cause nerve-impulse which leaves the cell-body by way of the axone.

As will be pointed out, the impulses travel either toward the central system or from it. The former class of impulses are called sensory, and by means of them the proper relationship of all parts of the body, individually and collectively, to their environment is maintained. The latter class of impulses are known as efferent, or motor, and it is through them that the functional activity and organic integrity of every part of the body are maintained.

The amount of nerve influence generated by the brain must always be commensurate with the amount of work required of the parts supplied by the nerves. This is excellently illustrated by the following: We have the power of determining beforehand the amount of nervous influence necessary for the production of a certain degree of movement. Thus, when we lift a vessel, the force which we employ in lifting it depends upon the idea which we have formed of its contents, when we are not certain what it contains. If it should contain something much lighter than we had estimated, unless force would be expended, and it would be lifted with exceptional ease; but if it contained something much heavier than we had anticipated, we would very likely drop it, because insufficient force was expended to accomplish the end desired.

Just as the response of muscles is proportionate to the amount of nerve force received by them, so also are the functional activities of all organs of the body dependent on the amount or strength of the nerve-impulses received by them. If, therefore, anything interferes with the power of conduction of the nerve, the impulses which it normally conveys to the parts which it supplies are not forthcoming, and these parts will suffer. There will be either functional derangement, or changes in its structure. It will therefore be seen that Chiropractic applies to all functional dis-orders, and a good many organic conditions. It will pay you to investigate. Phone Blue 85 for an appointment, or call on R. E. Eyoelson, the Chiropractor at 623-3rd Avenue, West. Advt.

TOC H BRANCH HERE PROPOSED

PRELIMINARY ORGANIZATION TOOK PLACE LAST EVENING AFTER SERVICE IN ANGLICAN CATHEDRAL At a meeting following evening service in St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral last night, preliminary steps were taken with a view to organizing a Toc H group here. Sixteen young men attended the meeting which was addressed by Padre Gilbert Williams of London, England, organizer of the movement. The wish was expressed to try out the idea of forming a group locally and James Underwood was appointed to be acting correspondent during organization. This provisional group will meet again next Tuesday evening and, if the idea successfully takes root, a group will be definitely organized, possibly in two or three months. Rev. (Commander) Oswald Hodgson of Telegraph Creek, an old member of Toc H, who is in the city from the north for a few weeks, will assist in the preliminary organization.

Explaining the nature and purposes of Toc H, Padre Williams stated that its membership was open to men over sixteen years of age. While Toc H had its origin during the Great War in France, its membership was by no means confined to ex-service men. It was interdenominational and non-political and no creed or dogma tests were required of its members. A man, on joining Toc H, however, recognized that he was joining the Christian family and accepted the four points of Toc H: 1. Think Fairly; 2. Love Widely;

SMITHERS MAN MARRIES GIRL FROM HAZELTON

HAZELTON, May 27.—On Wednesday afternoon an interesting wedding took place at the priest's house, Rev. Father Allard officiating, when Miss Veronica Katherine Spooner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Spooner, was united in marriage to Robert E. Gill of Smithers. The bride, who was a gray Kasha ensemble travelling suit, was attended by Miss Agnes Robinson of Smithers whose costume was sand crepe-de-chine with hat to match. The groom was supported by Cyril Spooner, brother of the bride. PARK BEAVER FOR SCOTLAND

TWO ALSO SENT TO NEW ZEALAND FROM JASPER RECENTLY

JASPER, May 28.—So that the young New Zealanders will get a better idea of their sister Dominion, Canada, the federal government has just shipped from Jasper to Auckland two live beavers. They were taken from their lodge in Caledonia creek and so that they should not become homesick, given special accommodation on the train and steamer. Two other beaver who have just left on a long ocean voyage were taken out of the Maligne Range dams and shipped to Edinburgh, Scotland. The Scotch beaver were removed from a colony of 40 which live in a creek five miles long in eight lodges. The creek which spouts out of a rock close to the Maligne River empties into the Athabasca near Henry House. Two fine specimens of mountain sheep and goats, unlike the beaver, both dead, are now in Edmonton being mounted for the Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa, and sheep and a goat head are being prepared for the Canadian embassy at Washington. They are all very fine specimens, shot by the park wardens for the purpose.

HARRY LAUDER NOT MEAN AS HE SEEMS

Friend of His Visiting Jasper Says He is Simply a Pose and not Real

JASPER, Park, May 28.—Harry Lauder's "meanness" is only a pose according to one of his old friends, James Leith of Aberdeen, who was telling stories about the comedian in the rounds of Jasper Park Lodge last night. "Of course," said Mr. Leith, "Harry does not throw money away, for he started life as a pit boy in the mines and he knows the value of money, but he has been guilty of acts of the greatest generosity. He gets more publicity out of his so-called meanness because the public likes to think of us Scots as close." Mr. Leith, who is head of a large distillery in Aberdeen, left this morning for Regina after spending several days enjoying golf and the mountain air. "This is my first trip through Canada," he said today, "and I can tell you it's a great country. I didn't know anyone when I landed and now I have a host of friends." One of the friends he made on the western trip and with whom he came to Jasper, was a J. Dickinson of St. Paul, Minn., passenger traffic manager of the Great Northern Railway, who is returning east after visiting Glacier and Jasper Parks.

CAT SUCKLED YOUNG FOX IN NOVA SCOTIA

SHELBUERNE, N.S., May 28.—The other day a local tabby-cat lost her family of kittens and was inconsolable. On a neighboring farm a baby fox lost his mother and was not only inconsolable but hungry. So the bereaved cat and motherless fox were introduced and tabby enthusiastically adopted the strange baby. Last reports were that both were happy and thriving.
