Indiscretion of U.S. Admiral Amazes London Press but Only Labor Organ Comments On It

LONDON, January 24 .- The London Press regards as "amazing indiscretion" the speech of Rear-Admiral Plunkett of the United States navy in New York when that officer is reported to have forecast a war between U.S. and Great Britain. All the newspapers except the Laborite Herald, however, refrain from editorial comment.

The Herald asserts that undoubtedly the "spirit of antagonism is growing between the ruling classes of United States and Great Britain, while there is a conflict of interest of American and British capital."

Speech From Throne Delivered Today is Optimistic in Tone and Touches on Many Questions

VICTORIA, January 24.—"There is reason to hope that there will be an adjustment of the outstanding difficulties between the Dominion and the Provinces that will be of general material benefit," said the speech from the throne read by the Lieutenant-Governor at the opening of the Legislature this afternoon, in connection with the recent inter-provincial conference.

"His unselfish public services and high personal character will long be an inspiration to the people of this province," the speech said, in reference to the loss to the province through the death of Premier Oliver.

The diamond jubilee visits of the Prince of Wales, Prince George, the Governor-General, Premier Baldwin and Colonel Amery were referred to and continued improvement in business conditions as indicated by greater production in the basic industries, increased bank clearings and continued activity in the building trades were noted.

"I am also pleased to note the credit of the province continues to stand high in the money markets of the world," said His Honor. "The Old Age Pensions Act has been brought into operation with beneficent results."

The speech also mentioned that the Martin commission report and the report of the irrigation commission will be shortly presented.

After the reading of the speech the House adjourned until tomorrow.
