TAKING OURSELVES SERIOUSLY

The Daily News has often mentioned that it is unwise to take ourselves too seriously. Just now we suggest that the farmers of Alberta are taking themselves very seriously. After a lively debate cents and yields him a margin of only they decided that Canada should not only reopen trade relations four cents. POWERS OF POLICE

Granted that the police must be given some powers not enjoyed by other people, it did seem like going too far when a policeman shot other organizations all over Canada. a man because he put his hand in his pocket instead of raising it at the imperious demand of the officer. It is more than probable that the Montreal member of the "force" will lose his job and perhaps be punished for killing his man, particularly as it happened to be the wrong man.

NOT MANY CARS YET

The proportion of motor cars to the population in Prince Rupert is not yet very large but it is increasing. Just now it is slightly F. W. Hart announces that the slogan more than one for every twenty. Possibly within a year or two it will be one for every ten. The present demand far cars is steadily increasing and with the extension of the highway up the Skeena River the demand will increase.

A POLITICAL TRUCE (Toronto Globe)

The Montreal Star has risen to great heights of editorial eloquence in calling for a truce to party politics. It devotes a column and a half to vigorous indignation over the idea that the two great parties should spend their time fiddling while the country-. Noand this is what lends distinction to The Star's utterance—it does not say the country is burning; there is little suggestion of "he whisper of death" of two years ago. There is a call for united effort in constructive work.

It is gratifying to welcome The Star to the exer-extending ranks of newspapers which believe political parties have something more important to do than fighting one another, jockeying for a stranglehold on each other, playing for position for the sake of self-aggrandizement.

Politics has long since been discredited as a trophy-hunting game. The running of the affairs of the country is a business, carrying with it grave responsibility. The party entrusted with the task has been granted it-or should be-because of the appealing character of the program presented to the electors, and not because of bribes through promises of public expenditures and office appointments. Voters as well as newspapers are learning more and more to take this view of public service.

Mr. Bennett, the new Conservative leader, is asked to give heed. "Under the new leadership of the Conservative party," says The Star, "one more chance for co-operative effort has come which SEARCHING FOR TIN can be moulded into actuality by the calling of a party truce." It is not probable that Mr. Bennett is prepared to endorse everything the government promotes, and it would be unwise to carry the truce that far, but he has already expressed himself as more desirous of serving the country than of gaining power. This is a statesmanlike view, and one which opens the way for him to assist, rather than attempt to block, the advancement of constructive legislation.
