Professional hockey this season has been attended with many accidents, some of a rather serious nature. The first night of the National League season saw Taffy Abel, of New York Rangers, sustain a fractured wrist when he fell in a shirmish. It was unavoidable, but Abel was out of the game for weeks. Just recently Happy Day, of Toronto Maple Leafs, was stepped on by a player during a scrimmage, and a tendon in his legnearly severed by a sharp point of a skate. He will be out of the game for the balance of the season, and may never play hockey again. Still more recently Doctor Bill Carson, also of the Leafs, sustained a fractured skull when he fell backwards to the ice following a hard check. Carl Voss, of Ravinas. in the Canadian Professional League, was hit in the mouth by a butt end, and a fractured jaw put him on the shelf for some weeks. Other injuries sustained by players include a broken leg by Babe Dye, of Chicago, and a fractured skull by Dick Irvin of the same club. Leo. Bourgeault, who replaced Taffy Abel, inherited his illluck and sustained a broken nose.

Pete Lepine, of Canadiens, broke his shoulder; Billy Burch of Americans had a knee badly hurt, and Dunc Munro of Maroons had a hand broken. Dutton, the man who accidentally caused Irvin's injury, was a temporary patient in hospital for some time with knee and back injuries. Ryler and Fisher of the Kitchener squad in the Canadian League are both on the injured list, while Jimmy Martin, of the Fort William Senior Ontario Hockey Association squad, had his right eye removed as a result of an injury sustained when the puck hit him in practice. On the Pacific coast, Jack Cranston, of Vancouver's Monarchs, is out of hockey for the rest of the year with an injured knee, while the entire first string defense of the Regina aces has been shelved for the rest of the season as the result of various in-
