SPORT CHAT

Parsons the Warwickshire cricketer showed an aggressiveness comparable with that of Constantine in the match between West Indies and Warwick. In one over Parsons hit a two and then four sixes. A total of 28 for one over is hurricane hitting.

It is quite on the cards that Association football may be dropped from the contests in the next Olympic Games in spite of their great gate drawing powers. This last may be the deciding factor in determining whether football will be retained or not but the payment for "broken time" will not be approved of the English Football authorities as any part of amateur football sport.

When Hobbs and Sutcliffe put up 119 together against the West Indies in the test match it was the tenth time they had put on over a hundred runs in an opening partnership in test games. Those include games against South Africa, Australia and West Indies and constitute a record that will not readily be beaten by any other pair of batsmen.

Other first wicket stands worthy of notice are those made in English county cricket by Holmes and Sutcliffe for Yorkshire, Hobs and Sandman for Surrey, and this year Watson and Hallows did fair to make a new record for three figures first-wicket stands in county cricket. Already they have equalled the standing record of nine such partnership and with a month of cricket yet they are likely to establish a new record. On four occasions this year they have made over 300 runs in four first wicket partnerships.

Parker for Gloucester against Middlesex at Lord's startled Middlesex players and spectators alike when he took 9 wickets for 44 runs. Of those 44 there were 20 scored by Bettington so that he took the seven wickets for practically 24 runs. And that was against a strong batting team too.

Ames of Kent who has been chosen for the test series with Australia in the wicket country this year as wicket-keeper is a batter of note and has an average of over 41 runs per match in English County series this year with an aggregate of 1400.

The broadcast speech attributed to Paddock the American "fastest human," is one of the most damaging condemnations of so-called sportsmen on record. It is to be hoped that the broadcast report was inaccurate, otherwise American ideas of sportsmanship will suffer from a black blot that will not readily be removed. And this disappointing showing in the Olympic games this year in the sprints does not help the situation.

BOXING NOTES

Maxie Osbahr will defend his world's junior lightweight title against Jack Goldstein, in New York next month. Maxie is considered to have a set-up in this match as Goldstein has been knocked out by Joe Rivkins, Billy Kiger and Sid Terris. There is a guarantee of $30,000 to those in the know must figure that Goldstein has a better chance than his record indicates.

would lead one to believe.

The retirement of Gene Tunney has not caused a great deal of comment. He was capable and intellectual but was never popular with the fans and this was his greatest weakness. He was a good advertiser, both for himself and for boxing, and suffered accordingly. His last match too did not help his standing for no one thought that Heeney had an outside chance to win.

And now "The King is dead, long live the King", the fans are far more interested in who will be the new champion. Firpo, the "Tiger" from Argentine, is one who promises to help make the elimination contests colorful. His knockdown of Dempsey was an indication of what he could do.

Other claimants are Young Stribling, Risko, and Jack Sharkey. And each of them will make a fight more interesting than Tunney simply because they will take the fans into their confidence while Tunney, though the champion and a good one, never had the heart of the crowd with him.

Provincial boxers and Canadians in general will welcome prospect of another bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell. By his win over Loughy of Chili at Detroit in the fourth round before a crowd of 18,000 with gate receipts around $85,000 McLarnin practically assured himself of a re-match with Mandell.
